Tragedy Stalks Airways As German Dirigible Explodes At U.S. Port

Big Ship Becomes Blazing Tomb—Detonation Tears Airliner in Half and She Burns as She Crumples in Fall To Earth

Trapped in a flaming hell of high-explosive gas, 33 persons were listed as known dead today in the crash of the mammoth, silver-painted Zeppelin Hindenburg at 4:23 o'clock, M.S.T., last night at Lakehurst, N.J. The tragedy, striking with lightning swiftness as the giant craft hung 200 feet aloft, preparing to moor at the end of its 21st voyage across the North Atlantic, left 65 survivors—many of them terribly burned and injured. Twenty-seven bodies had been recovered at dawn.

LAKEHURST, N.J., May 7—Germany's great silver Hindenburg, the world's largest dirigible, was ripped apart by an explosion last night that sent her crumpling to the naval landing field a flaming wreck with horrible death to about a third of those aboard her.

Capt. Lehmann

Exactly how many died was in dispute after the flames had licked clean the twisted, telescoped skeleton of the airship that put out from Germany 76 hours before on its opening trip of the 1937 passenger season.

In the crowded hospitals in the communities neighboring this hamlet in the pine covered New Jersey coastal plain, many of the survivors are in critical condition, a number suffering from burns.

Exactly how many died was in dispute after the flames had licked clean the twisted, telescoped skeleton of the airship that put out from Germany 76 hours before on its opening trip of the 1937 passenger season.

In the crowded hospitals in the communities neighboring this hamlet in the pine covered New Jersey coastal plain, many of the survivors are in critical condition, a number suffering from burns.

Some were so gravely injured, among them Capt. Ernst Lehmann, that the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church were administered to them. Lehmann, skipper of the ship's 1936 flights, made the ill-fated flight as an observer. Captain Max Pruss, the commander, was listed among the injured survivors.

Ambulances, carrying doctors and nurses rushed from every section of New York State, screamed as they dashed past the gates, past the gaping hangar to the smouldering mass on the field.

Lakewood Hospital Filled With Injured

A few minutes later they hurried out, hospital-bound. Paul Kimball Hospital at Lakewood was full. A few of the less seriously injured were taken by plane to Newark, 70 miles away.

In the garage back of the naval hospital, the corpses lay. One person said there were 40 there. Later a group was brought into the hangar for identification attempts.

Firemen pumped water on the embers, which still smouldered three hours after the tragedy.

An explosion of the No. 2 gas cell toward the stern of the ship was named as the cause of the disaster by State Aviation Commissioner Gill Robb Wilson, who called the blast "strange."

The highly-inflammable hydrogen gas billowed into fierce flame as the explosion plummeted the ship to the airfield. Ground spectators said crew members in the stern of the ship "never had a chance" to escape.

The disaster struck without the least warning. The ship had angled her blunt nose toward the mooring mast, the spider-like landing lines had been snaked down from her belly and the ground crew had grasped the ropes from the nose, when the explosion roared out, scattered ground crew and spectators alike.

The passengers, who were waving gaily a minute before from the observation windows that slit the belly of the dirigible, were so stunned they could not describe later what happened. Some jumped to the sandy landing field along with members of the crew. Others seemed to have been pitched from the careening sky liner as it made its death plunge.

The heat drove back would-be rescuers, so it could not be determined for how many the Hindenburg made a burning tomb. Fire departments from nearby communities converged

MONTS, France, May 7. — The Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Simpson, hand-in-hand, posed for photographers today beneath a chestnut tree on the lawn of the Chateau de Cande.

Inside, invitations were being prepared for their marriage.

"We are very happy. We always are very happy," the Duke said, smiling.

The bride-to-be's trousseau, including a wedding gown in blue, is virtually complete. On the day she becomes the Duchess of Windsor Mrs. Simpson will wear a long afternoon dress, part of an ensemble with a jacket to match in soft silk.

The date of the wedding will be announced after the coronation.

Principal Resigns

REGINA, May 7.—Dr. E. W. Stapleford, for 22 years principal of Regina college, has announced his resignation.

Big Log Drive

SUDBURY, Ont., May 7.—More than 1,000,000 logs will be driven down northern Ontario rivers to Sudbury district sawmills starting next week.

2,806 SPANISH REFUGEES NOW SAFE IN FRANCE

BORDEAUX, France, May 7.—Two shiploads of Spanish refugees from Bilbao, exactly 2,806, reached safety in France today.

Women with babies in their arms, old men unable to fight and children chattering with excitement came to the French ports of La Rochelle and Pauillac aboard two Spanish ships.

Behind them they left almost all they possessed, but they had the French government's promise of haven in France.

The steamship Habana, with 2,483 passengers, 2,000 of them children, anchored at La Rochelle, north of Bordeaux, and the Izarra, once a pleasure yacht, brought 153 children and 170 adults—most of them women—to Pauillac, down the Gironde river from Bordeaux.

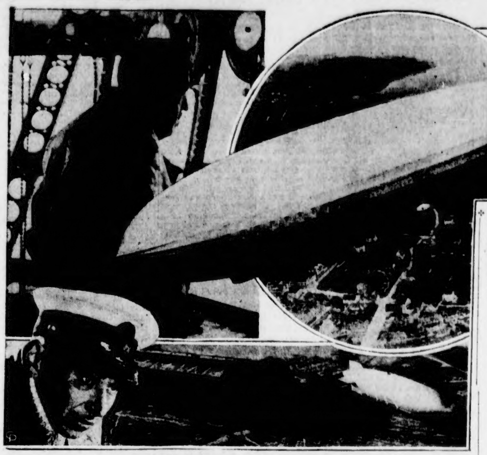
The French ships Carimare, Margaux and Chateau Palmer steamed into Bilbao to bring out more civilians. Ten doctors vaccinated the refugees against smallpox.

Hindenburg Ship Heavily Insured

LONDON, May 7. — Insurance authorities here said today the Hindenburg was insured for $2,500,000 with the $2,000,000 spread thinly among numerous Lloyds underwriters, the remainder held by German interests.

Once Proud Liner Gone

MYSTERY IN BLAST



Germany's pride, the giant Zeppelin Hindenburg, which was destroyed in a tragic explosion, at Lakehurst, N.J., is shown here in a photographed flight. An air view of Lakehurst is shown in the bottom picture. With his back to the camera and gazing through the dirigible's pilot windows is Dr. Hugo Eckener, who commanded the Hindenburg on its first trip but was not aboard on this flight. Below him is Capt. Ernest Lehmann, who commanded the dirigible on the present flight. He is now in hospital at Lakehurst.

Sabotage Hint Rampant In Air Queen Destruction

BERLIN, May 7 — A shocked and tearful German nation summoned an official commission today for a quick trip of investigation overseas to fix the cause of the tragic Hindenburg disaster, yet rallied amid the deepest mourning to follow "the same path" of aerial trailmaking.

The Nazi air ministry called an early afternoon conference of officials of the Zeppelin construction company, the Zeppelin airlines, and the German Institute of Aeronautical Research to decide the personnel of the commission that will speed by plane and ocean liner to Lakehurst.

The German people, from Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Dr. Hugo Eckener down to the poorest workman in the stunned and tearful knots that gathered in the streets, were plunged into profound and amazed grief.

Some at Frankfort-on-Main, the burned Zeppelin's home city, stood beneath flags at half mast to speculate about "sabotage."

"What else could it be?" they asked.

There was no official expression of such suspicion.

Rushing to Berlin from Austria, Dr. Eckener, designer of the Hindenburg, cried real tears.

NEW YORK, May 7—Cause of the disaster that befell the Zeppelin Hindenburg at Lakehurst, N.J., may never be known. Today theories ranged from touching off of the dirigible's hydrogen lifting-load by a spark of static electricity to sabotage.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, modern "father" of lighter-than-air craft, said the possibility of sabotage must be considered.

The New York Herald Tribune reported a "suggestion" that as Germany's "Queen of the Skies" slid toward her mooring mast, "an inflammable bullet was fired into the ship by an enemy using a rifle with a silencer."

Contrary to these sensational possibilities, the consensus of aviation experts leaned toward the belief that either an electrical spark or one from an engine of the airship, touched off her 6,700,000 cubic feet of highly inflammable hydrogen gas.

Captain Frank McCrary, one-time commander of the ill-fated United States dirigible Shenandoah, said he believed the destruction of the Hindenburg probably was caused by a spark from one of the craft's Diesel engines.

Modern dirigibles are built with joints reinforced and protected so there is practically no chance of picking up static electricity and causing an explosion of gas, McCrary said.

BERLIN, May 7 — Dr. Hugo Eckener, designer of the Hindenburg, was moved to tears today by news of the Lakehurst tragedy but quickly drew from it an argument for use of helium — which Germany lacks—to float lighter-than-air craft.

Word of the disaster smote the 69-year-old aeronautical pioneer at a Graz, Austria, hotel. When he was awakened to be told the Hindenburg was a mass of smoke-blackened, twisted girders, tears welled to his eyes, the hotel proprietor said.

At first the grizzled doctor seemed unable to comprehend what had happened.

"I can not grasp that flames have turned 'our pride' into a smashed skeleton," he muttered. Given the first sketchy reports, Dr. Eckener said "it might have been sabotage."

"We have received several anonymous warnings of possible reports to damage the ship," the doctor added. "One mysterious warning was taken but the only rational conclusion was that the veiled threat came from cranks."

"We must make an about-face. We must use helium despite the fact it has not such a good lifting power.

"I might point out that sabotaging helium-filled ships is much more difficult."

Edmonton Still Friendly City Responds To Bulletin Plea To Aid Homeless Families

Edmonton is still "The Friendly City."

Responding to The Bulletin's appeal on Thursday for aid to the families whose worldly possessions were wiped out in the disastrous forest fires which swept through the Breton area earlier in the week the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, the Salvation Army, the Canadian Red Cross and private citizens rallied to the cause.

At an emergency meeting of directors held on Friday morning under the chairmanship of President John Dower the Chamber of Commerce decided to sponsor the appeal, and will circularize its members for donations. The chamber will also ask all service clubs in the city to canvass their members, and is issuing an appeal generally to the public.

Donations in money will be received at the Chamber of Com-

Expect North Flying Start Within Week

Open water flying into the far north for the spring season is expected to commence next week, it was learned Thursday from W. R. May, O.B.E., superintendent for the Mackenzie River district for Canadian Airways.

Ice is out at Fort McMurray and Fort Chipewyan but Mr. May stated it would be necessary to wait a few days for breakup at Fort Fitzgerald and Fort Smith, on the Slave river.

Naval Splendor Seen In Review Of Great Ships

LONDON, May 7.—The home fleet—30 warships—brought a touch of coronation splendor to the Thames today and roused it from its routine of coal barges, tugs, tramp steamers and ocean liners.

Flags flying and escorted by all manner of private craft, the fleet steamed majestically up the ancient river. The ships are scheduled to remain in the Thames until May 12, when they will move to Spithead for the coronation naval review.

Dead And Missing . . .

LAKEHURST, N.J., May 7.—The following were reported dead or missing today in the Zeppelin Hindenburg's destruction:

Passengers: R. Herbert Anders, son of Ernst Anders; Berger Brinck; Hermann Doehner, Mexico City; Irene Doehner, daughter of Herman (died of injuries); Burtis Dolan; Edward Douglas, New York; Fritz Erdman; Mortis Feibusch, San Francisco; John Pannes, New York; Mrs. Emma Pannes, his wife; Ottawa Reichold, Vienna, and Allen Hagamaun, Lakehurst, N.J.

Crew: Walter Bernholzer (died of injuries); Ludwig Felbeher (died of injuries); Hans Hugo; Stach; William Stett; and Franz Werner.

MADRID ENTERS 7-MONTH SIEGE IN NEW FIGHT

MADRID, May 7.—Madrid's defenders today crushed another attempt to relieve the 3,000 insurgents trapped in Madrid's north-western University City as the capital entered the seventh month of siege.

Advancing in the wake of an artillery barrage, insurgent forces attempted to cut their way through government positions at Los Franceses bridge — linking University City with points west of the Manzanares river—but were beaten back after a stiff two-hour engagement. They left many dead.

SAILORS DIVED INTO WRECKAGE TO AID INJURED

LAKEHURST, N.J., May 7.—Gil Robb Wilson, New Jersey aviation director, describing the wrecking of the Hindenburg, said there was "a hydrogen explosion in No. 2 cell from the rear."

"There was something very strange about the explosion," he said. "The Hindenburg had stopped completely and was preparing to hitch when flames broke out from the rear.

"The only persons possibly saved were those who were in the engine gondolas. Those in the belly of the ship absolutely had no chance.

"In all my 21 years of flying experience I have seen crackups, explosions, flaming airplanes but nothing measures up to the explosion of the Hindenburg.

"I cannot be too loud in my praise of those navy boys who dived into the flames like dogs after rabbits in their rescue work."

LUCKY BREAK HELD MAX OFF LOST ZEPPELIN

SPECULATOR, N.Y., May 7.—Only luck kept Max Schmeling,, German heavyweight boxer, from being aboard the dirigible Hindenburg when it exploded last night.

Schmeling arrived here yesterday to train for his scheduled June title bout with James J. Braddock.

Thunderstruck when informed of the tragedy at Lakehurst, he shouted: "How did it happen; how could it happen?"

Then less excitedly he said:

"I had booked passage on the Hindenburg, but had to change my plans and come by boat."

Hitler Presents $12,000 To Fund Of Zeppelin Victims

BERÇHTESGADEN, Germany, May 7.—Chancellor Hitler started a fund for bereaved families of the Hindenburg disaster victims today with a gift of $12,000.

Commander Lehmann Injured, in Hospital, Says "I Do Not Know What Happened" — Eye-Witnesses Tell Stories Of Mighty Fall Of Great Skyway Liner.

LAKEHURST, N.J., May 7—When the Zeppelin Hindenburg crashed in blast and flame, one of the fatalities was a member of the ground crew, who was caught amid the blazing debris that spilled from the skies in a fiery rain. Dozens of the survivors, catapulted or stumbling dazedly from the holocaust, hovered between life and death in hospitals nearby the scene of the disaster.

And with many of the dead still to be identified, anxious relatives and friends scanned charred, mutilated forms lying in the termporary morgue established in the airport garage.

Even as U.S. army troops poked through the still smouldering ruins at dawn, continuing their search for missing bodies, a federal investigating committee began to probe the disaster which struck the "Queen of the Skyways" with incredible swiftness.

SCORES SEE TRAGEDY

Scores of spectators witnessed the sudden, shocking tragedy. One instant, they waved greetings up to passengers standing in the windows of the observation compartment.

Then, in a flash, a cannonading explosion jarred the huge cigar-shaped craft, a streak of flame lashed out, and the Hindenburg plummeted clumsily to earth.

Tiny black objects — bodies — hurtled from the flaming craft. On

MOLA'S REBELS DRIVE FORWARD TO TAKE BILBAO

WITH THE INSURGENTS OUTSIDE BILBAO, May 7—General Emilio Mola's insurgents drove forward today in a resumption of their effort to crush refugee-jammed Bilbao, capital of the Basque republic.

The offensive had been halted for three days to permit consolidation of gains that have carried the insurgents within sight of the city.

Dispatches indicated the advancing insurgents were just outside the last ring of trenches and fortifications barring their way into the Basque capital.

KING QUIETLY MEETS ENVOYS IN OLD ABBEY

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 7—In quiet and modest dignity, the King came to Westminster today.

There, in the old hall of William Rufus—where Simon De Montfort summoned the burgesses to England's first parliament—George VI met representatives of parliaments throughout the British Empire.

There were Princes from India, Socialists from the industrial district of Britain. From the Mother of Parliaments herself, from the dominions, India, the colonies—the envoys of 400,000,000 people assembled in loyal greeting to the King-Emperor.

"This is an historic occasion," said the King to the cheers of the guests. It was the first time a sovereign had been present at lunch in Westminster Hall to meet those who represent the parliaments of the Empire.

Public Warned In Ordering Bulbs In Netherlands

The Ministry of Agriculture of the Netherlands warn the public that orders for bulbs should not be placed with bulb dealers in the Netherlands without first obtaining from the Vice Consul information as to whether the dealers are recommended as reliable.

The Vice Consul for Northern Alberta is W. Dixon Craig, K.C., 316 McLeod Building, Edmonton, Alberta.

Pickets Broken Up

TORONTO, May 7.—Police today broke up picket lines at the Ontario Silknit Company where 200 strikers, now discharged by the firm, gathered. Police cleared the district of all pickets except those allowed by law.

Pert Jane E. Turner, above, stepped from a San Diego, Cal., hotel gift shop toward a life of riches when she said "yes" to Claus Spreckels, Jr., heir to the vast Spreckels' fortune. Plans after their San Diego wedding included a honeymoon voyage to New York, then to their future home in Coronado.

CHANT WOULD HAVE PREMIER CONTEST SEAT

Would Not Dismiss Trusted Officials So Was Ousted Solon Says

Charges that Premier William Aberhart had requested him "on more than one occasion to dispense with the services of certain trusted and competent officials" of the department, W. N. Chant, former minister of agriculture in the provincial government, on Friday issued a reply to the Premier's allegations that his removal from office was due to lack of aggression.

The former minister also declared that he had refused to accede to the Premier's requests, and charges that his removal from office by Order-in-Council was a most unusual practice and decidedly unfair.

A challenge is issued to the Premier that both the Premier and Mr. Chant resign their legislative seats and go before the people of Camrose for election to determine the feeling of the people.

"The action of the premier in demanding my resignation was

80 MILLIONS CONVERTED TO LOW INTEREST

OTTAWA, May 7.—With $80,000,000 of the maturing 5½ per cent Victory Bonds converted to new low interest bearing two and five year maturities, books on those series were closed at four o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Books will be held open for some time on the 12-year conversion issue. The loan opened Wednesday, being restricted only to conversions.

Expressing himself as "extremely gratified" at the response to the conversion offer, Mr. Ilsley issued orders to all authorized dealers and banks to close the books of the two shorter term issues.

PREMIER OF B.C. WOULD RELEASE STREET BEGGARS

VANCOUVER, May 7.—Premier Pattullo asked the federal government today to let 50 of British Columbia's unemployed out of jail.

They were picked up for begging. Just as they were sentenced to one month in jail yesterday the government announced in Victoria that men whose work in relief camps had been satisfactory, would be allowed to return.

EDMONTON IS YET FRIENDLY: ANSWERS PLEA

merce offices or The Bulletin and will be acknowledged in this newspaper. It is believed that receiving depot will be opened for donations of clothing, furniture, bedding, etc., all of which is badly needed, but until the depot is opened the Salvation Army has undertaken this collection and has placed its trucks and telephone at the disposal of the committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

THEY WILL CALL

A call to 26875 will result in a Salvation Army truck calling for any donations in kind.

While the collecting of funds and donations will be undertaken by the Edmonton organizations distribution will be made by the Canadian Red Cross operating from Edmonton under the direction of Canon C. F. A. Clough.

Already the Red Cross has sent A. P. Mitchell of Millet, former member for Leduc in the provincial legislature and well acquainted with the area, into the fire ravaged district to make a preliminary survey.

Mr. Mitchell will probably be in charge of the actual distribution to families, many of whom are left absolutely destitute and who are now refugees living on the charity of neighbors who are in little better plight themselves.

That The Bulletin's appeal did not fall on deaf ears was apparent as soon as Thursday evening's issues appeared on the streets.

GENEROUS GIVER

"Get me the names of four of the families who are worst hit and I'll have cheques for $25 each out to them in the earliest mail," said one businessman over the telephone.

"The Bulletin should be congratulated. It's a good idea. Put this in from 'The Golden Rule'," said another man who dropped into The Bulletin office to leave a $10 bill for the fund.

Officers of the Salvation Army were quick to rally to the cause, and the whole resources of that resourceful organization were placed at the disposal of the fund collectors by Major Joseph Acton, divisional commander, and Adjutant J. Shaw.

"The entire forces of the Edmonton division will be mobilized to succor the residents of the fire-scarred area and bring relief as quickly as possible" said Major Acton. "Count the Army in to the limit.

"We are willing to place our van at the disposal of this city-wide mission of mercy.

WILL GLADLY HELP

"Our men will gladly go out collecting food, clothing, bedding, and other necessary supplies, for the fire victims. If necessary, we will charter additional vans. These people must all be helped and we are anxious to help them," said the Commander.

"I think a central receiving depot should be opened at once on Jasper avenue. The big job is to gather the material in, and we will do that, but having a depot would aid the work considerably."

"Until that depot is secured, we will gladly place our phone in the Men's Industrial Department of the Salvation Army at the disposal of those interested in this work. Just call 26875 and our van and men will call."

"I wish it to be clearly understood," Major Acton added, "that all goods designated for relief of forest fire victims should be tagged and earmarked specifically for this purpose. This voluntary work we are now undertaking is completely distinct from the usual welfare work we conduct."

Major Acton was confident that goods could be rushed out to the distressed regions without cost by arrangement with railway companies, and undertook to see what could be done in this regard.

MAYOR OFFERS AID

Mayor Joseph A. Clarke also offers full assistance of any kind.

"If the Chamber of Commerce wants a tag day we will gladly cooperate," he said. "We will do all in our power to help the work along in any way, shape or form."

Chief of Police A. G. Shute also offered the services of his men for anything they could do. "I believe that Edmonton should make a real effort to see that the suffering of those people who have lost everything is relieved, and the police department will do its bit," he said.

Canon Clough, as head of the Red Cross in Edmonton has been in touch with provincial headquarters at Calgary and has been authorized to go ahead with the relief work.

"We will be getting reports on actual cases and will start relief work at the earliest opportunity," he said. "Some clothing has already been sent in, but undoubtedly much more will be needed."

That's the picture as it is today. The machinery is ready. All it needs now is the necessary oiling. Send in your donations to the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce or to the Bulletin. If it is clothing, furniture, food, bedding, kitchen utensils or other necessities telephone the Salvation Army at 26875 and they will be collected.

Let's go, Edmonton. Let's show 'em we're still entitled to be called "The Friendly City."

CROWN, GLORY ADDED FILM FOR CAPITOL

As a special added attraction to the musical comedy farce "On the Avenue" at the Capitol theatre is a very unusual film "Crown and Glory," an exclusive motion picture in anticipation of the Coronation of King George VI. Going back fifty years it depicts the happenings in the Royal Courts of Europe. There are actual motion pictures of England's greatest and most popular queen, Queen Victoria, and King Edward VII, with pictures taken all over the world during the past 50 years, leading right up to the present king, George VI, and all the royal family.

BURNS WILL LEAVES NEAR FOUR MILLION

Many Relatives, Housekeeper and Charities Are Remembered

CALGARY, May 7.—Under the will of the late Senator Patrick Burns, his nephew, Michael John Burns, president of the Burns Packing Company Limited, is left $100,000 in shares of the Burns Foundation Limited.

He is also to receive an annuity of 10 per cent of the income from the residue of the estate and 15 per cent of the residue of the estate.

NEAR FOUR MILLIONS

Aggregate value of the estate was $3,931,494 and the net value $3,833,413. Assets included $3,196,296 in bonds and stocks; $346,290 in life insurance and $346,045 in cash on deposit.

After making a large number of charitable requests, the will provides for many of the senator's relatives, including:

Barbara E. McGhee, niece, Brechin, Ont., $20,000 in shares; Patrick E. Farrell, nephew, Beaverton, Ont., $10,000; Zeta Kathleen Coughlin, niece, Winnipeg, $20,000; Eleanor Stella English, niece, Winnipeg, $20,000. They will also share in annuity income from the estate and a percentage from the residue of the estate.

ANNUITY FOR SISTER

Mary Ann Farrell, 71, Beaverton, Ont., a sister, will receive an annuity of $1,200 and William James Burns, a brother, of Vancouver, an annuity of $1,800.

Milicent E. Burns, widow of Patrick Michael Burns, the senator's son, will receive a life annuity of $350 a month.

Employees are remembered in the will including Ada F. Holliday, the senator's housekeeper, an annuity of $1,200.

quite unexpected so far as I was concerned, and was not accompanied by what appeared to me any adequate reason for the course he adopted," reads the statement.

"The only ground the premier stated was that 'more aggressiveness and higher efficiency' was required in the minister of agriculture.

"The more vague a charge is, the more difficult it is to reply to it. I asked for a more definite reason, but none was forthcoming.

COULD NOT ACCEDE

"I have been requested by the premier, on more than one occasion, to dispense with the services of certain trusted and competent officials in the department. I explained to the premier that I could not accede to that request as I felt that, as minister of the department, I was responsible for its efficiency and that to terminate their employment would impair that efficiency, and, in addition, would be doing a grave injustice to well-tried public servants, who enjoyed not only my fullest confidence, but also that of my predecessors.

The adoption of the course of removing me from my position as a minister of the crown by means of an order-in-council, is, I understand, an unusual one. The practice in passing orders-in-council is first to submit them to a meeting of the cabinet for its approval. This is in accord with the British form of government which embodies the collective responsibility of the cabinet. I have no knowledge that a cabinet meeting was held in this instance.

SEAT FOUND FOR HIM

When a question of public interest arises, and acute differences of opinion occur, the proper tribunal to appeal to is the electorate. The premier has not so far faced a contested election. He even did not seek a seat in the general election, but waited until it was over, when a seat was found for him. He was then properly returned unopposed in accord with the decided mandate of the electors.

I feel that so much dissatisfaction has now arisen over the question of his leadership that, at least, he personally, should confront the electors. As he has reflected upon me I think a double purpose would be served if I resigned my seat in Camrose, and he resigned his seat, and both of us submitted ourselves to the electors of Camrose, and the issue would be his vindication or mine.

IN INTEREST OF PROVINCE

This is a challenge which I make not so much in my own interest as in that of the province of which I have been for so long a resident, and whose future I have at heart. It is a challenge which the premier in his own interest, and in that of the province, should accept.

I have always regretted that the premier has not followed the recognized practice of the leader of a Government of speaking on the floor of the legislature defending its policies. It is there that he could join in open debate, where he and those who cannot agree with him are each subject to the criticism of the other.

Such a contest as I now propose will give him that opportunity which he has hitherto denied to himself.

AWAIT ANSWER

I shall await his answer with interest, and perhaps with a little impatience.

I desire to take this opportunity of dissociating myself from certain remarks of the premier over last Sunday's broadcast, when he emphasized the importance of loyalty, stating that in the army they shoot traitors, and asking what should be done to a man guilty of treason in parliament.

For a leader to endeavor thus to curb the thoughts and actions of his followers is the very height of Fascism to which no Britisher should ever yield.

That the premier of the province should expound such doctrines is hard to understand and the occasion on which he does so only serves to render them still more objectionable.

Has not the time now come for a public protest to be made against anyone, much less the premier of the province, being permitted on a Sunday afternoon or evening to intrude a political speech into what is supposedly a religious broadcast?

Should not representations be now made to the Canadian Broadcasting Commission to put an end to political broadcasting on a Sunday, more especially under such conditions?

Edmonton Chamber Makes Appeal For Stricken Sufferers

This week devastating fires have swept the country southwest of Edmonton and scores of pioneer settlers have lost homes, furniture, farm machinery, food, supplies of feed for livestock and in many cases every necessity of life.

These unfortunate settlers are without reserves of any kind. It is a calamity that rouses our sympathy and calls for immediate action towards helping them to re-establish themselves.

With these objects in mind, the Chamber of Commerce urgently requests that not only its own members, but any others in the City of Edmonton and district who are able to assist, send in contributions, either in money or in appropriate supplies.

NOT DUPLICATION

It is not the intention to duplicate services which may be rendered by other institutions. All monies and supplies turned into the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce will be distributed through the agency of the Canadian Red Cross Society, which is admirably equipped for this purpose.

The need is urgent. Contributions may be sent to the office of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, McLeod Building, Edmonton, or left at any bank in the city.

WILL CALL

As far as goods and merchandise are concerned, these will be called for promptly if the contributors telephone the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, 22757.

It is hoped that an arrangement can be made with the railways whereby goods donated will be delivered free of charge, but in any case contributors can feel assured that every dollar donated will reach the sufferers without deduction.

Strip And Teasers Lose Trial Fight

NEW YORK, May 7.—State Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Rosenman today denied the application of three burlesque theatres for a mandamus to direct Paul Moss, commissioner of licenses, to renew their licenses.

APPEAL COURT TO DEAL WITH HEAVY DOCKET

Heading the list scheduled for hearing by the Alberta appeal court which opens sittings here on Monday morning, May 10, is the appeal brought by the provincial government to test a court ruling on the Reduction and Settlement of Debts Act, which was declared ultra vires of the province by Mr. Justice Ewing.

Other appeals listed include that brought by R. S. Bird, C.N.R. fuel agent, Cadomin, against a decision of Mr. Justice Ewing awarding approximately $16,000 to Mario Battagin, Edmonton youth, for the loss of his leg in an automobile accident.

Four appeals are listed against convictions made by Magistrate A. H. Gibson on criminal charges. Bill Lylick will seek to have a conviction and sentence of seven years for robbery while armed, set aside, while Mrs. Grace Hayes and Mrs. Marion Brisco will appeal a conviction and sentence of three months for keeping a bawdy house.

Mrs. Isabel Doherty will seek the quashing of a year's suspended sentence on a bigamy charge, and Robert Clarke the quashing of a conviction and sentence of six months on a charge of stealing $21.20 from a downtown restaurant cash register.

Edmonton Agent Gets News Of Disaster

Edmonton and Northern Alberta agent for the Hamburg-American Line, general agents for the Zeppelin air liners, S. E. Tanner this morning received the first official message relayed through to agents of the line from the New York office relative to the disaster to the Hindenberg.

The message stated that of the 36 passengers on board the huge air ship, 24 had been saved, one died in hospital and 11 were still unaccounted for. Among the latter were Mr. and Mrs. J. Pannes, resident director of the line in New York and general agent for the North American continent for the Hamburg-American Line.

"I am afraid that we must fear the worst," said Mr. Tanner, in respect to those still reported missing.

No information came through regarding crew members.

Baldwin Guests

LONDON, May 7.—Empire premiers will be the guests of Prime Minister Baldwin at Chequers on successive week-ends.

Jack Greig and Ernie Jater of Calgary will arrive in the city Saturday morning to debate against a team from the Edmonton Conservative Speakers Club in the Agency Building Club Rooms on Saturday night. The subject for the evening, "Resolved that Canada should establish a system of National Scholarships", was debated in the House of Commons at the last session.

APPEAL FROM BALDWIN HAS BORNE FRUIT

National Coal Strike Appears Postponed for Two Weeks

LONDON, May 7—Prime Minister Baldwin's appeal for industrial peace bore fruit today as the national coal strike appeared postponed for two weeks, at least.

It was announced after a conference of the Mine Workers Federation of Great Britain with officials of the department of mines that the federation's executive was prepared to suspend for a fortnight from May 8 the handing-in of notices to coal operators which would terminate the union contracts on May 22 and thus result in a nation-wide coal strike on that day.

The decision was subject to a condition that a conference of Nottinghamshire colliery owners and the federation, with representatives of the Nottinghamshire and district industrial union, could be arranged.

Captain Crookshank, mines minister, then invited the three groups to attend a conference.

Railways Institute Pick-Up, Delivery Service In Canada

Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, after experimenting for several months, have instituted "pick-up and delivery" service between all points in Canada, it was revealed here Thursday.

Both railways are now offering cartage service from the shipper's place of business or residence to their trains and are carting the freight from the trains to their ultimate destination at the other end of the line.

For many years, of course, both railways have operated "door-to-door" express deliveries but the new freight service is expected to bring them greatly increased business.

H.B.C. Northern Transport Chief Back From North

Col. H. G. Reid, manager of Hudson's Bay Company's Mackenzie River Transport, is back in Edmonton after a trip to Peace River where he saw the good ship Weenusk slide away on her first trip of the season to Vermilion chutes.

The Pelly Lake is scheduled to leave Waterways today or tomorrow for Fort Fitzgerald on the first trip over the northern route. Col. Reid will travel to Waterways next Thursday and two days later will watch the Athabaska sail for Fort Smith. The ice in the river below Fort Smith won't have disappeared before June.

Col. Reid is anticipating northern business that will top even last year's record transport. He is also making preparations for the trip which Their Excellencies, Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir, will take aboard the Distributor to Aklavik in August.

The Colonel's office is in Winnipeg.

Zepp Had Close Call In Halifax During Last Year

HALIFAX, May 7.—The giant German Zeppelin Hindenburg had a narrow escape over the Bras D'Or lakes in Nova Scotia last year.

The airship descended so low a telephone operator at Grand Narrows flashed word to company headquarters in Halifax the Zeppelin had crashed. Farmers in the Grand Narrows district said they believed they could have touched her.

Military Orders

Battery orders by Capt. J. V. Horner, officer commanding the 96th Field Battery, R.C.A.

The battery will parade at the Prince of Wales armouries on Friday, May 7, at 20.00 hours, and on Monday, May 10, at 20.00 hours. Dress: Uniform.

The purpose of these parades is for final instruction for the Coronation parade on May 12, and it is essential that every man turn out.—(Sgd.) J. H. Mooney, 2nd Lieut.

C.N.R. Main Line Now Being Cleared

Rallying quickly from the disruption of train schedules caused by derailment of a coal-bearing freight train near Leaman on Wednesday night, C.N.R. officials reported Friday morning that conditions on the road were now back to normal and all trains were coming into Edmonton on time.

Considerable debris still remains to be cleared away, however, as about 500 tons of coal were spilled over the roadbed during the pile-up. Several wooden box-cars, damaged beyond repair by the accident, may have to be destroyed.

Work was proceeding Friday at a rapid pace in removing the few remaining traces of the damage done by the derailment, officials said.

STRICKEN ZEPPELIN WAS LARGEST EVER BUILT

Passengers Could Even Carry Their Autos Aboard Her

NEW YORK, May 7—The Hindenburg, considered the greatest product of the science of airship construction, was the largest Zeppelin ever built—803 feet long. She was built in 1936 at Friedrichshafen.

Powered with four huge 1,000 horsepower Deisel engines, it had a maximum speed of 84 miles an hour and carried a crew of 40 besides 50 passengers.

CARRIED 15 TONS

Its pay-load capacity of 15 tons constituted the largest combination of passengers, freight and mail ever lifted off the ground by aircraft.

As a "flying hotel," it was the most luxurious of the 150-odd airships built in the 36 years since Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin made his first historical dirigible flight.

A promenade more than 150 feet long enclosed by unbreakable glass provided an unobstructed view in all directions.

Staterooms similar to those on ships were equipped with folding desks, and shower baths. The airship had a completely equipped kitchen, with electric ranges and refrigerators and a large stock of linen, china and silverware.

COULD TAKE CARS

The huge freight compartment would hold 24,000 pounds of baggage, and passengers were offered the service of taking along their cars or even light airplanes.

The ship was piloted from a forward gondola, separate from passenger quarters.

The gas which held up the sky behemoth was contained in 32 balloons arranged in a continuous chain from bow to stern.

The ship was constructed of a series of aluminum longitudinal girders, giving it 36 "sides." Joined by a series of rings and various cross girders.

The outer covering of the ship was a cotton material made strong and watertight by "doping" with a liquid containing aluminum powder. The main supporting gas was inflammable hydrogen gas.

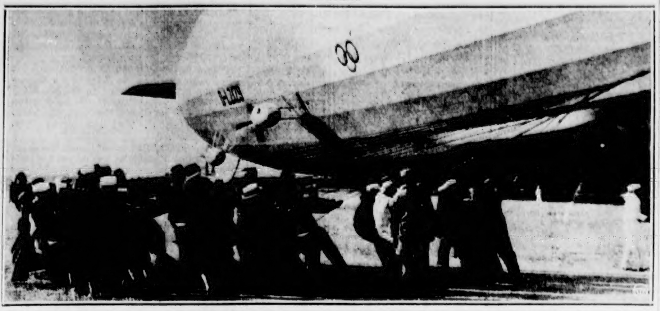
8,500 MILE RADIUS

The Hindenburg had a cruising range of 8,500 miles—sufficient for a non-stop round-trip from Lakehurst to Germany, or from New York to Shanghai, China.

She made 10 trips across last year, carrying from 21 to 57 passengers each time.

Her fastest crossing was from Lakehurst to Frankfort in July, last year. Leaving Jersey July 6 with 50 passengers, 91 pounds of mail and 250 pounds of express, she nosed over her German base 45 hours and 43 minutes later, breaking her own May 14 record and that set by the Graf Zeppelin the year before.

Man Power To Save Airship



Heels dug into the turf, every ounce of weight and strength thrown against the land lines, the ground crew strains every muscle to the tensely critical task of mooring the huge dirigible Hindenburg on arrival at Lakehurst, N.J., after a perilous voyage across the Atlantic on one of its commercial trips to the United States. The high wind pressing against the 800-foot side of the dirigible, threatened to tear it away from sailors in the ground crew.

COMPLETE FILM RECORD OF ZEPP BLAST CAUGHT

LAKEHURST, N.J., May 7.—At the second the Hindenburg exploded last night an Associated Press staff photographer had his camera focussed on the mammoth dirigible.

Murray Becker, cameraman of the New York A.P. staff, had been assigned to cover the arrival, and as the ship dropped her lines to be hauled in to the navy mooring mast, was snapping pictures.

Thus his camera in a series of more than 15 pictures recorded one of the most shocking air disasters in recent years from the moment of the explosion to the rescue of survivors.

U.S. Cleared Air For Zepp Arrival

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Officials of the U.S. Bureau of Air Commerce said today they had ordered safety measures in connection with the arrival of the dirigible Hindenburg.

They had issued an order yesterday that no American aircraft should fly within one mile of the giant ship while it was in flight or moored. Similar orders were issued before previous trips.

UNDERWRITERS IN LONDON HIT BY AIR TRAGEDY

LONDON, May 7—British insurance companies will stand a large share of the financial loss resulting from the explosion which destroyed the dirigible Hindenburg.

Captain Lamplugh of the British Aviation Insurance Company declared that a great part of the dirigible risk had been underwritten in London.

The only danger feared for the giant craft had been collision, he added.

Tragedy Cracks German Dirigible At U.S. Airport

on the field and soon had streams of water playing on the broker airliner.

The flames still enveloped the outline of the ship, apparently feeding on the fuel oil supply which the Hindenburg carried for her Diesel motors.

F. W. von Meister, vice-president of the American Zeppelin Transport Company, the general United States agents for the German Zeppelin Transport company, the Hindenburg's owners, said there were two possible causes for the explosions.

First he listed the rainy conditions which prevailed at the naval air station when the landing was attempted. The ship cruised around over the field for an hour to ride out a rain storm and nosed down while rain was still falling.

The rainy condition, von Meister said, would make for creation of a spark of static electricity when the landing ropes were dropped and such a spark might have touched off the highly explosive hydrogen gas which gave the long silver ship its lifting power.

The second theory von Meister advanced was that a spark flew from one of the engines when they were throttled down for the landing. The ship had been valving hydrogen preparatory to landing, and he theorized some of the gas might have gathered in a pocket under the tail surfaces and detonated when the spark flew back.

Some authorities scouted the theory that explosion could have been caused by the ignition of hydrogen inside the gas cells. They said a mixture of 20 per cent free air with hydrogen would be necessary to cause an explosion, indicating the first blast must have occurred outside one of the gas cells.

Aeronautical experts said the only way they could explain an explosion inside the ship would be that free hydrogen had in some way escaped and was lying in the stern of the ship where it was accidentally ignited.

The ship was 76 hours and 23 minutes out of Frankfort-on-Main, her home port, when the disaster occurred.

Authorities said there were two explosions in the air, followed by several lesser ones after the stricken ship settled on the ground. The lesser explosions were believed due to detonating fuel tanks. The blasts ripped the ship as if she were made of paper.

Red, Black Flames Shoot High In Sky

The first two blasts sent red and black flames shooting high into the evening sky, but men standing under the ship reported they felt virtually no concussion.

Captain Ernst Lehmann, who piloted the ship on most of its trips a year ago, tottered dazedly from the wreckage and staggered toward an ambulance.

As the flames raced forward along the fabric toward the passengers' lounge and the control car, the navy men of the ground crew "dove into the flames like dogs after a rabbit."

The force of the explosion hurled some passengers from the fabric envelope of the ship as it fell and threw them stunned on the landing field.

Wilson repeated he considered the explosion's cause unexplained and added, "I repeat there was something strange that caused this tragedy."

"Those in the belly of the ship," he said, "absolutely had no chance."

The tail with its swastika emblems of Nazi Germany sagged downward immediately after the first rending explosion. The nose hung motionless for a moment in the air, then crashed earthward. The split sections telescoped as they fell, and pieces of the silvery fabric fluttered down, some in flames.

Ground crew members estimated the ship's altitude at a few hundred feet when the disaster broke.

Even as the flames were consuming the dirigible, passengers were arriving at the air station with luggage for the return trip. The schedule called for a rapid turn-about this trip, with departure toward midnight last night. It was to be a gay voyage back to Germany as many of the would-be passengers were bound for the round of coronation festivities in London next week.

RUN FOR LIVES

"Run for your lives," was the cry that scattered spectators when the dirigible took her flaming plunge. The navy men of the ground crew who stood their ground took one badly burned man from the control car, up in the nose of the ship, soon after the section struck. This showed the speed with which the fire raced from the stern.

Survivors and rescue workers told of the terrific heat which followed the explosion and the surge of fire

Spectators shrieked and screamed as the explosion, apparently in the stern of the envelope, shattered the ship and she collapsed, falling in burning wreckage to the ground.

READY TO LAND

A few minutes previously the passengers had lined the sloping observation windows of the dirigible, waving and shouting to those on the ground. Their cries rang out as the ship plunged.

The ground crew of sailors, which had been standing by to help land the ship, scattered before the explosion. One sailor later said he saw three bodies removed from the stern of the ship, all burned beyond recognition.

Even after the first stunning explosion sent the ship crashing, additional blasts continued to rend the Hindenburg's silvery bulk. Spectators sobbed hysterically at the abrupt disaster in which the Hindenburg ended her maiden 1937 trip to America. Eighteen trips had been planned this year.

Army trucks and ambulances rushed to succor those who escaped with their lives. The body of one woman, presumably a passenger, was picked up from the landing field.

FRAME SPRAWLS

Within a few moments after the explosion and the billowing flames that mushroomed out immediately, the twisted metal framework of the dirigible sprawled on the ground.

More than an hour after the explosion at 6.20 p.m. E.S.T. the wreckage was still blazing with a huge black cloud of smoke visible in the darkness of the airfield.

Those on the ship who survived were so stunned by the unexpected disaster they could not tell what had happened. "There was a blinding flash," said one passenger, Herbert O'Laughlin of Chicago, "but the people on the ground would know more about it than we would on the ship."

O'Laughlin related how he escaped by leaping from the ship when she plummeted close to the ground.

From his vantage point on the ground an Associated Press photographer, Murray Becker, gave this vivid eye-picture:

"The ship burst toward the tail end, near the centre. The tail went down first and the nose seemed to hang in the air.

"I ran toward the ship and saw it enveloped in flame.

"In a fraction of a second there was nothing left but the skeleton.

MAN'S CLOTHES GONE

"I saw a man walking toward me, assisted by two men. He had no clothes on. I saw a woman on a stretcher. There were screams from men and women on the field."

The heat from the burning bag was terrific, spectators on the ground related.

Rescuers rushed to the wreckage and those brought out were speeded away to hospitals, making difficult a check on the number of casualties.

A state-wide police alarm was broadcast for ambulances and doctors and they responded by airplane and automobile from several cities.

Other survivors were Herbert O'Laughlin and Nelson Morris of Chicago, a radio officer named Schweinhardt, and three children of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Doehner of Mexico City. Mrs. Doehner and two of her sons were taken to a Point Pleasant hospital, where their injuries were reported as not serious.

Following were in Paul Kimball hospital, Lakewood:

Captain Lehmann.

Philip Mangone, New York, shock and burns.

George Hirschfelt of Bremen and New York.

Col. Nelson Morris of Chicago.

And the following, unidentified as to whether passengers or crew members: Albert Summit, William Stett, Theodore Ritter, Frank Herzog, condition critical; William Luthenberg, Hons Hugo, Adolf Fisher, Ray Fields Stahler, Joseph Lebrecht, Hans Teinhold.

MAY BE SPECTATOR

Leonard Jacobson, of Lakewood, also at the Lakewood hospital, was believed to have been either a member of the ground crew or a spectator.

The following survivors were taken to Royal Pines hotel and clinic, Pinewald: Mrs. Mary Kleenmen, 51, Frankfort-on-Main, Germany; Hans Fiund, 31, same address; Alfred Groeinger, 20, same address; George Grant, 63, London, Eng.

Seven were at Fitkin Memorial hospital in Neptune. One, a man, was unconscious and was not identified. The others: Richard Kalmer, machinist member of crew; Ergin Brentele, also a machinist; Mrs. Elsa Ernest; Philip Lentz, Frankfort-on-Main; Herbert Dowe, wireless operator; Ernest Knoecker, Ceglenloda, Germany.

Two stewards and a little cabin boy, who refused to give their names escaped. They said the explosion came from the stern of the ship and they saved themselves by jumping from the windows.

GOT THREE BODIES

Harry Wellbrook, of Toms River, a member of the ground crew directely under the stern, waiting for the landing lines to be thrown, said he and the men in the crew ran for their lives to keep away from the blazing wreckage.

After the dirigible struck the ground and they returned they tried to bring survivors from the wreckage.

He said, "We got out three bodies from the stern of the ship all burned beyond recognition."

"One of the men was so horribly burned that the features were not recognizable only by the fact that he was still breathing could we tell he was alive. The clothing on all of these bodies was burned to cinders and the skin scorched off."

The rescue workers started to enter the wreckage before the fire had stopped burning. They entered the bow of the ship near the control cabin from which one badly burned body was taken shortly after the explosion.

CRIES TERRIBLE

Screams came from the wreckage.

Rescue workers said the anguished cries were "terrible".

One rescue worker said he saw about a dozen persons pulled out of the wreckage.

Robert Seelig, a photographer, said:

"There was a noise that sounded like bullets coming out of the gondolas. I saw nobody jumping. I heard everybody on the ground screaming. The heat made my face tighten up."

SHIP BUCKLED

One witness standing almost directly under the ship said:

"As she dropped her lines down at 6:20, E.S.T., there was a burst of flame and a loud report which appeared to be just aft of the port stern gondola.

"The ship buckled as the flames spread from the aft to forward and then slowly settled to the ground. With several of the others I ran as far as I could out of the circle.

"I saw the ship just sink down and the flames go through it. The fabric burned away in a few seconds. I turned back with others to go as close to the ship as possible to pick up the survivors."

"There were two men slightly bleeding, one as though he had been punched in the mouth. Then I saw his right hand was badly singed. He said he was Clifford Osbun of Chicago and the other said he was Philip Mongon.

"Osbun was discussing with Mongon the possibility of going back to seek a third companion who stood with them when the explosion occurred.

"Osbun told me they were standing together in the dining salon and looking down watching the preparations to moor. The next thing he knew he was thrown right out of the side of the ship, apparently out of the port and found himself on the ground.

HEAT TERRIFIC

"I tossed both of them in a car and we rode to the naval hospital.

"The ship seemed to spread to the nose. There were two distant explosions! She floated down gently.

"The heat was terrific. You could feel it on your body and it rocked you. I saw nobody jump. I could hear people screaming and hollering when she hit the ground. I saw bodies on the track and some of the crew walking around in a daze, nude.

"I saw the radio man, I think his name is Hartmann. There wasn't a scratch on him. He was talking in a daze. We couldn't tell how many got out alive but I saw about six walking."

Joseph Capestro, a member of the ground crew, said he saw three men leap out of the control cabin, and one of them wore commander's stripes. He took him to be Commander Lehmann.

Official sources said as far as was known, none of the United States navy officers, or civilian ground crew lost their lives.

UNABLE TO TALK

Herbert M. Le Compte, of Lakewood, said he treated one of the survivors who was so badly burned he was unable to talk.

Le Compte said he offered to treat one of the officers but the officer waved him to injured members of the crew, saying, "No, later."

FRIDAY, MAY 7

ALL TO THE GOOD

A fall of mixed rain and snow was "just what the country needed," much more than it is usually needed at this time of the year. With most of the seed in the ground, this timely supply of moisture will start germination; and in addition will stop soil drifting, freshen pastures, and check the bush and brush fires which have been playing havoc in several districts.

Another intangible but considerable benefit—it has effectually dampened the cock-sure predictions that we were going to have a terribly dry summer in this part of the province. For, that also we may give thanks, and take courage.

THE REACTION

The Albertan warns Social Crediters "That failure to compose their differences will result in the scuttling of both factions and send the hope of Social Credit or any other material reform a-glimmering for years to come."

"Or any other material reform" is the phrase that will or should catch the attention of those outside the ranks of that party who have hoped that the cruelties of the depression would be compensated by revision of the monetary system into something less inhuman.

Public opinion often flies from one extreme to the other. Should Social Credit fail when tried, for any reason—as outsiders foresee it must fail—will popular sentiment in Alberta swing from the limit of radicalism to the limit of reaction? Stranger things have happened, and happen daily.

That is one of the dangers incidental to an attempt to make too drastic a change in established customs and institutions. Progress proceeds best by evolution, not revolution.

BABY SUBSIDIES

Premier Mussolini is going to pay parents from 13 to 38 cents a week to support each new baby that arrives in Italy. What he wants, of course, is boy babies, who will grow up to be "fodder" for cannon in future Ethiopian adventures.

Assuming the average bonus to be 25 cents per baby per week, and half the babies to be boys, the Italian taxpayer, besides maintaining the army of today, is going to have to maintain the armies of tomorrow at a cost of $26 per year per recruit to-be. Allowing for those who will die in childhood, the cost will run to $35 per year for each soldier of the future.

The bonus has been raised to the present figure because the former bid did not get results. Presumably it has ben set at a sum calculated by experts to be sufficient to expand the baby crop to the proportions needed to fill the ever-expanding ranks of the military "machine."

But this guess, too, may turn out to be a miscalculation. In which case the bonus will have to go up again. For soldiers must be had if the predatory policy is to continue, and soldiers Mussolini intends to supply for his successors, at whatever cost to the Italian taxpayers. To say nothing of the cost to Italian mothers—and Italian morals.

THE TROUBLE BEARERS

Canada has had some premiers, federal and provincial, who seemed to think fate had a pick on them, and had loaded them up with worries beyond compare, if not beyond endurance. We have in fact got pretty well used to hearing doleful appeals for sympathy from political leaders, who somehow persist in overlooking the fact that they asked for the jobs and can quit whenever they want to.

Just as a fortifier against future outbursts of self-pity from these quarters, readers would do well to keep in mind a recent despatch from Paris, beginning "Paris the Gay is troubled with foreboding." There follows a whole column of short paragraphs giving an itemized word "picture" of conditions in France demanding the attention of its Government.

Not France in a time of crisis, but in a time when there is no crisis, when things economic and political are more or less normal. Yet it takes nearly a column of type to set out in the briefest way the subjects making for trouble and requiring adjustment, amendment, or official action of some kind.

When next one of our weary political Titans starts to bemoan the weight of his burden, it will help to assess the worth of his claim to popular sympathy to recall this recital of the things France's Premier has to worry about when the political atmosphere is comparatively calm. And the job of the Premier of France is not particularly more strenuous than that of the Premier of Great Britain.

An hour or so in the place of either of these men would send our prize offical self-pitier home filled with gratitude that the lines of a Canadian prime minster fall in such pleasantly quiet places.

THE TROUBLED LITTLE ENTENTE

A new element of disunion has been injected into European politics by rivalry that has broken out between the three nations forming the Little Entente. Czechoslovakia, Rumania, and Jugoslavia still owe nominal allegiance to their diplomatic unity, but their cohesion is tottering and wobbly. Unsanctioned by her allies, in actual defiance of their known wishes, Yugoslavia recently drafted treaties with Bulgaria and Italy, the Entente's inveterate foes.

This move has awakened angry echoes far beyond the borders of the Little Entente. Fear that Yugoslavia's action may have breached the network of friendly states she formed so carefully after the war has seized upon France. Only a few weeks ago she strove to bind the Little Entente in a formal pact of mutual assistance as insurance against German aggression. Today that hope has withered. Yugoslavia has joined closely with Italy, Czechoslovakia is again virtually isolated, and France has incurred a severe diplomatic rebuff.

The moral contained in this frustration should not be lost upon the great powers of Western Europe. They cannot always continue regarding smaller states as their constant and necessary satellites in time of danger. On the contrary, grim prospects darkening Franco-German relations may suffice to drive these powers into guarding their own security by arrangements with their more immediate neighbors.

Peace-lovers will regret that outposts to French security have been lessened because of the complicity of Yugoslavia and her own tragic hesitancy. Her ability to parry this accession to Italian strength at the direct expense of Paris will provide a new test of the resource and dexterity of French foreign policy.

Daily Menus

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

Dr. McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, May 9, 1937:

Dr. F. McCoy

SUNDAY—Breakfast: French omelet; Melba toast; figs with cream. Lunch: Wholewheat muffins; cooked turnips; raw celery. Dinner: Baked chicken with Melba toast dressing; asparagus; salad of raw celery, cooked peas and carrots; dish of berries.

MONDAY — Breakfast: Fresh fruit as desired. Lunch: Corn; string beans; celery. Dinner — Lima bean loaf; baked eggplant; salad of chopped raw cabbage and cress; gelatin with cream.

TUESDAY — Breakfast: Coddled eggs; Melba toast; stewed prunes. Lunch: Boiled potatoes with fresh peas; turnip salad. Dinner: *Minced chicken in tomato jelly; asparagus; string beans; pineapple whip.

WEDNESDAY—Breakfast: Waffles; two or three slices of crisp bacon; stewed raisins. Lunch: Pint of buttermilk; McCoy salad (lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers). Dinner: Beef roast; carrots cooked with meat; salad of stuffed tomatoes; cup custard.

THURSDAY—Breakfast: Baked eggs; toasted cereal biscuit; stewed pears. Lunch: Dish of berries; glass of milk. Dinner: Roast pork; cooked greens; beets; spring salad; baked apple.

FRIDAY—Breakfast: Wholewheat muffins; peanut butter; stewed figs. Lunch: Apples as desired; with handful of pecans. Dinner: Cream of tomato soup; broiled halibut; asparagus; salad of tomatoes and cucumbers.

SATURDAY — Breakfast: Cottage cheese; sliced pineapple. Lunch: Cooked string beans; salad of grated raw carrots. Dinner: Broiled steak; artichoke; stewed carrots; celery and olives; gelatin with cream.

*MINCED CHICKEN IN TOMATO JELLY: Drain two cups of juice from a large can of tomatoes. Pour into a saucepan and heat to almost boiling point. Have ready one envelope of gelatine which has been softened with a little cold water. Dip up some of the tomato juice and stir into the gelatin until thoroughly dissolved, then mix all together and set in a cool place until the juice begins to thicken. Now mix in one cupful of minced chicken, one-third cupful each of chopped celery, parsley and minced ripe olives. Pour into wet molds and place on ice until mealtime, then unmold on crisp lettuce. (Serves 4.)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: M. J. G. inquires: "Is it correct that the expectant mother must taste every kind of food she craves and that if she is denied that food, that she will thereby mark her child? I mean, if the mother craves strawberries and does not get them, that the child will have a mark which will look like a strawberry."

ANSWER: There is no reason to believe that the denial of any certain article of food will produce any marking such as you describe. This theory as to the orign of birth marks has been proved to be without foundation. The birth mark is simply a congenital nevus, that is, a reddish discoloration of the skin with which the child is born. The discolored patch is formed by dilated blood vessels and since the patch commonly resembles the outline of a strawberry, it may remind the one who sees it, of a strawberry, both on account of its form and on account of its reddish color. While the popular name for a congenital nevus is a "mother's mark" which would lead one to believe that the child was marked by the mother, the truth is, that any food denied the mother, or any fright she might have had, had absolutely nothing to do with the defect. A birth mark occurs when the blood vessels at any particular spot do not develop normally at the same time that the other blood vessels are developing. A certain kind of defect results and this defect has been given that particular name. All that the name means is that the mark was present at birth.

Poems That Live

EACH IN HIS OWN TONGUE

A fire-mist and a planet—
A crystal and a cell—
A jellyfish and a saurian,
And caves where the cave-men dwell;
Then a sense of law and beauty,
And a face turned from the clod—
Some call it Evolution,
And others call it God.

A haze on the far horizon,
The infinite sky,
The ripe, rich tint of the cornfields,
And the wild geese sailing high—
And all over upland and lowland
The charm of the goldenrod—
Some of us call it Autumn,
And others call it God.

Like tides on a crescent sea-beach,
When the moon is new and thin,
Into our hearts high yearnings
Come welling and surging in—
Come from the mystic ocean,
Whose rim no foot has trod—
Some of us call it Longing,
And others call it God.

A picket frozen on duty—
A mother starved for her brood—
Socrates drinking the hemlock,
And Jesus on the rood;
And millions who, humble and nameless,
The straight, hard pathway plod—
Some call it Consecration,
And others call it God.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

The British Cabinet is the real ruling force of the British Empire. The Prime Minister can make cabinets and in a clash overrule the king. Yet the discovery has recently been made that there is no legal sanction for the Cabinet, and no such office as "prime minister".

These two defects are in process of being cured in the new Minsters of the Crown Act before the Britsh Commons. In the meantime the Cabinet and the Prime Minster are under no threat. Their offices and title have been sanctioned by tradition. They will now be established by law.

As every Christian should know, the cross, the symbol of Divine love, was at first a symbol of criminality, as the hangman's gallows is today. So, too, the word "prime Minister" which marks the highest honor in the ranks of British public service, was originally a term of mockery, and political vituperation. It was first applied two centuries ago to Sir Robert Walpole, whose opponents charged him with arrogating to himself powers unknown to the constitution. Walpole, denying the accusation, replied to his critics:

> "Having first invested me with a kind of mock dignity and styled me the prime minister, they impute to me an unpardonable abuse of that chimerical authority which they only have erected and conferred."

The brass plate on the door of No. 10 Downing Street, the offical residence of the prime minister, does not bear the words "Prime Minister". It carries the words "First Lord of the Treasury"—the official title which prime ministers have held for many generations.

In only one isolated instance does the term "prime minister" creep into the English statutes. That was in 1917, when Lord Lee donated his country home at Chequers, to be the official country residence for whoever happens to be the "prime minister."

History is not clear about the origin of the first cabinet. It is claimed that the cabinet originated when George the First, Elector of Hanover, came to the British throne. George was a German, and could speak hardly a word of English. Accordingly, a number of his public servants would come together to discuss national affairs and advise the king what to do.

Sir John Simon, British Home Secretary, who knows a great deal of constitutional history, in bringing in the Ministers of the Crown Act, claimed that Cabinets go back as far as the days of Queen Anne, who reigned for the twelve years immediately before George the First came to the throne. Perhaps George found some ready-made advisers who had previously been accustomed to advise Queen Anne.

This discovery, that Cabinet government has been in existence for over two hundred years in Great Britain without any legal sanction, is another proof of the British instinct for pioneering democratic forms of government.

British Cabinets watch public opinion closely. By-elections are regarded as thermometers of public opinion. Within the past three weeks we have seen how Cabinet policy in regard to the Bilbao blockade has been modified under pressure of public opinion. Three by-elections now being fought may still further stiffen British policy in Spain.

One genial minister at a dinner where numerous economic, naval and military experts were present, outlined his public duties, as follows:

> "The duty of a Minister is to save all of you gentlemen from being hanged upon the nearest lamp-posts".

Democratic government is government by consent. The expert may forget the public, but the minister must know how much interference the public will stand. Official life is arduous. A minister must be a member of Parliament. After consulting his departmental heads, he has Cabinet meetings, luncheon and dinner engagements where he must speak. He must be in attendance at the House till midnight each night—sometimes till 2 and 3 next morning.

When Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin places his resignation next month into the hands of the Monarch, to seek the quiet of private life, he will probably recall the old political saying, "The two happiest moments in a Cabinet Minister's life are when he is receiving the seals of office, and when he is handing them back."

Sir James Sexton, better known as "Jimmy" Sexton, the English dockers M.P., in his recent autobiography, "Sir James Sexton: Agitator", tells an amusing story of how Ramsay MacDonald, got by accident, his first lift up the ladder of Labor politics which led to the Premiership of Great Britain.

The office of secretary of the Labor Representation Committee of the party had fallen vacant. This committee carried on the party's propaganda. Fred Brocklehurst, prominent in Labor circles at that time, was nominated for the office, but Brocklehurst declined. Instead of accepting nomination he offered the name of J. R. MacDonald. Says Sir James:

> "Some confusion arose among the delegates, many of whom, especially those from London, thought Brocklehurst meant James MacDonald, secretary of the London Trades Council, and father of the famous Socialist resolution adopted by the Trades Union Congress at Belfast in 1891. Consequently, there was no opposition to Brocklehurst's nominee, and James Ramsay MacDonald was elected as secretary."

Sir James was deckhand on the tramp steamer Fitzmaurice that in 1878 found Cleopatra's Needle afloat in a storm from the tugboat engaged to tow it from Egypt to England. He was "shanghaied" in San Francisco and once—thinking he was helping a friend smuggle in some tobacco—brought a bomb from New York intended to blow up Liverpool Town Hall. He slept with the infernal machine under his head across the Atlantic.

To quote Lloyd George, "Sir James Sexton: Agitator" portrays "the rich life of a poor man." Well over eighty years old, Sir James is still active in British Labor politics.

A Day in Canadian History — o — By FRED WILLIAMS

Today is the anniversary of an important but little known step towards unity of the British provinces in North America, an agreement by which each admitted the produce of the other on an equal footing, a sort of intercolonial reciprocity. At that time Canada proper and the Maritime colonies were being drawn together by their joint demand for postal autonomy, which came in 1851 when the British postmaster general relinquished control of the services on this continent and we secured postal autonomy. During the negotiations between Canada, Halifax and Saint John on the postal issue the matter of trade relations mingled, and the result was that a number of customs restrictions were abolished and trade benefitted. Unfortunatetly at that time the people of central Canada did not realize their true interests lay with the British colonies to the east and spent many millions on a railway to Portland, Maine, which should, if they had had national vision, have gone to Saint John and Halifax.

May 7 also recalls the fact that in 1880 the Great North West Telegraph Company was founded at Winnipeg, with little thought by its founders that their company would be the first monopoly to come out of the west. It was not long before the G.N.W. swallowed up the Dominion and Montreal Telegraph companies and secured a telegraph monopoly which lasted until the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs came and gave competition.

"With The West In Her Eyes"

(Reviewed by C.A.L.)

There is the possibility that I should be barred from reviewing this delightful piece of writing by Kathleen Redman Strange. Perhaps I will be too prejudiced to be fair and impartial in my judgment of the book; it may be that I have known too closely the types of community about which she writes; or I may have seen a few too many families just like Kathleen Strange and her boys come quietly, unostentatiously into the midst of those communities, totally unprepared for what lay ahead, only partially welcome, and certainly never expected to run the gamut of the tragedies and heartaches ahead; or I may have seen both from within and without those little feuds that rankle the breasts and wreck the outward friendliness but seldom destroy the inner friendships of a neighborhood; or I may have myself (with my own good wife) too often travelled thirty miles in a cutter in bitter weather to partake of the hearty sincere good will at those community gatherings such as Mrs. Strange's own house-warming; perchance I've known too many of the old community pioneers (and their stories) of whom she writes, and perchance seen so many of these new, unsung families survive it all as did the Strange's, and come to be themselves the respected centre of a community. Because of all these I may have too warm a spot in my heart for the host of Kathleen Redman Strange's who have built the West, and who are still the backbone of its struggle with all those forces, economic and social, which would, but for them, relegate it again to the pioneering stage. Perhaps!

On the other hand I have no personal interest in Mrs. Strange's story—I have never had the good fortune to know this progressive and persevering Wheat King of our own native province, nor his charming wife; while I've stood within arm's length of the Major on several occasions, and heard him discourse at some length, and with exceedingly telling argument, with his fellow-agrarians on matters of agricultural, economic and financial policy; while I've hunted Hungarian partridge (and with grand success) on his pleasant farm at Fenn, still I had no advance and inner personal reaction in favor of "With the West in Her Eyes."

But I am enthusiastic about the book now that I've read it — not that it is an epic of the west, because I think that term involves more time and space than is covered by Mrs. Strange—but because it is the fairest, most realistic and yet the least pretentious story that has been written of rural life as we Albertans know it. Rural life is not the sombre existence too many outsiders think it is, certainly not for those who can rise above the bitterness of the fight against that primal struggle for existence that is the characteristic of farm life. Many of us know, like Kathleen Strange, the finer qualities that abound in the personalities which survive that struggle—know the color and warmth, the romance and sincere human interest that is as present, even though more deeply buried under the stress, strain and labors of everyday farm life, in the farm community as in the outwardly more colorful world of bright lights and gay revelry. The ability to lay hand on that undertone of rural life, and to express it, comes only to the personality that has stood the buffetings of Nature with a sense of humor unimpaired. I am forced to conclude from the joy in her words that Kathleen Strange has weathered the storm admirably.

Who wouldn't recall the inconveniences of the farm, the rush and hurry of the spring, the tenseness of the harvest, the heavy-laden table for the typical farm crew, the tragedies of family loss and of the storm, the worries of the weather, even the hearty mirth which resulted from her encounter with the family milk cow? I'm really happy that she glimpsed enough of the humor of these situations that they have not robbed her of her sense of perspective. I am happy, too, that she tells how great a part the weaknesses, foibles, mistakes and recriminations of her family played in the life of the community and in the building up of the story she records. It is anything but a one-sided, paean of self-praise that she gives us.

I would like to have referred to "With the West in Her Eyes" as the "Saga of The Strange's," but I find I cannot. It is so much more than just that—it is the story of a typical western community in which this staunch girl of London and her mate were but a part. It is a tribute, unconsciously, to the thousands of women who, like herself, swallowed their pride and shouldered their burden in a one-room granary on the prairies; it is a tribute to the neighbors and workers who made up the community and who carry on in spite of wind, weather and financial adversity.

The West owes much, and many times over, to those neighbors who make up the little communities like that surrounding Ferndale Farm; and I think we will all be the better for Kathleen Strange's able picturization—the rural reader for the combined inside and outside view of himself and his community; the urbanite for a broader and truer conception of life as their farm friends know it; and those outside of Alberta for a truly Albertan landscape and symphony of rural life.

International Fur Workers Mulcted In Winnipeg Suit

WINNIPEG, May 7—Describing actions of fur strikers and union officials here as "Nothing more or less than mob law," Mr. Justice J. E. Adamson, in Court of King's Bench, today awarded $2,869 damages and court costs against officials of the International Fur Workers' union in favor of A. and M. Hurtig, local fur manufacturers.

The judgment rebuked authorities for not taking more strenuous action to keep the peace and granted a permanent injunction against picketing of the Hurtig company premises, which has been in progress since last August.

UNION OFFICIAL

A. and M. Hurtig started the action against 10 named defendants, including Morris Reiss, New York, vice-president of the International Fur Workers' union, Samuel Herbst, New York, general organizer of the union for Canada, Charles Freedman, president of the local union, and William Litvin, secretary.

Money awarded the plaintiffs was made up of $1,869 spent buying meals and transporting their employees to and from work since the strike started last summer, and $1,000 for special damages for loss of business.

The judgment said actions of the strikers and unionists was "nothing more or less than mob law," directed by aliens and that it was not understandable why authorities permitted it.

The court charged the strike had been financed by $30,000 or $40,000 "supplied by a foreign organization."

ALIENS CONSPIRE

"Why public officials charged with keeping peace and protecting property have not intervened is difficult to understand and that aliens should be allowed to remain here and conspire against public order indicates weakness somewhere," the judgment said.

"Mob law is being organized and is growing. How far is law going to bow before it? No doubt many of these young people (the strikers) are misled and ignorant of the seriousness of their conduct and that they are guilty of an offence. It would amount to a very small thing if the authorities made the position clear."

RELIEF COSTS FOR SIX YEARS 800 MILLIONS

Grants Likely to Decrease As Prosperity Returns to Most Provinces

OTTAWA, May 7.—In the past six years unemployment relief has cost Canada more than $4 a second.

An estimate for the six fiscal years ended March 31, 1937, placed total expenditure by Dominion, provincial and municipal governments at nearly $800,000,000.

Figures collected by the Bank of Canada and made public today show that to the end of March 31, 1936, the total was $635,000,000.

CONDITIONS BETTER

For the past fiscal year Finance Minister C. A. Dunning estimated costs of the Dominion would be about $80,000,000 and on the basis of past expenditures by provinces and municipalities the grand total will approach $800,000,000.

General improvement in the economic situation has led to cuts in amounts the Dominion will spend this year in conjunction with the provinces.

Estimates for grants-in-aid and works to cope with unemployment approved at the past session of parliament were $35,788,000. This was down more than 30 per cent from $51,000,000 the preceding fiscal year.

The $16,000,000 for works remains about the same but grants-in-aid were reduced $10,000,000 and two special votes of about $6,000,000 for relief camps and payments to railways for absorbing unemployed workers were dropped.

SUBSTANTIAL CUTS

Due to varying rates of returning prosperity in different parts of the country, the cut some provinces will face in the dominion's contribution are expected to be substantial.

For the drought-ridden prairies however, the amounts are understood to be closer to last year's figures, the basis of division being the actual needs of the localities.

Relief costs steadily climbed during the five-year period ended March 31, 1936 for which the Bank of Canada publishes figures. By fiscal years the expenditures by the three types of governments were as follows: 1931, $20,000,000; 1932, $90,000,000; 1933, $95,000,000; 1934, $105,000,000; 1935, $155,000,000 and 1936, $170,00,000.

Of the $635,000,000 the Dominion paid about $260,000,000, the provinces a similar amount and the municipalities $115,000,000.

Choirs Excel In Presentation Of Oratorio

George Frederick Handel's perennially popular and durable oratorio, "Judas Maccabaeus," was successfully presented on Thursday evening by the Robertson United church choir, augmented by the St. David's Welsh Male Voice Choir, at Robertson church, the whole being under the baton of Henry Atack. The performance will be repeated on Friday evening.

75 VOICES

The combined choirs totalled approximately 75 voices and supported by Mrs. F. Barber Smith at the organ gave a presentation of this lasting oratorio that showed in convincing manner the standard that can be attained in choral singing hereabouts.

"Judas Maccabaeus" is one of the world's outstanding oratorios. It is the twelfth of Handel's English oratorios, composed after he transferred his residence to England. It was written by command of the Prince of Wales. Handel himself is reported to have suggested the subject to commemorate the Duke of Cumberland's victories in Scotland —a thought that produced the mighty chorus, "See the Conquering Hero Comes."

ONLY ONE MONTH

Handel with that rapidity of action and accomplishment in part-writing that makes most contemporary musicians stand aghast, commenced the music on July 9 and completed it on August 11, 1746. Just imagine a work of such quality being composed in just over a month. Its first production took place at Covent Garden, London on April 1, 1747.

"See the Conquering Hero Comes" was transferred by Handel to this oratorio from another work, "Joshua." The air "Wise Men Flattering" and the chorus "Sion Now" were introduced into the score several years after its first production and the latter is said to have been one of the last pieces composed by the great master.

Under the spirited, capable and artistic direction of Mr. Atack the chorus sang with vigor, care, balance, splendid blend and in general acquitted itself with infinite credit.

In the more spirited choruses, such as "See the Conquering Hero Comes" and "Hallelujah Amen," there was a vibrant, ringing quality that carried all before it, while in the quieter passages, there was a judicious mixture of tone that fell pleasantly on the ear. The work was a magnificent example of choral writing and the chorus carried off high honors in its performance.

SOLOISTS GOOD

The soloists, all well experienced in the vocal art, were splendid. All were thoroughly familiar with their numbers and sang most capably.

Mrs. Katherine Gardner was in excellent form in the soprano assignments while Roxyna Phillips, contralto seldom has been heard to better advantage. David Jones and William Smith, tenors, handled the many difficult and beautiful passages allotted them in most artistic fashion, while the bass voice of Dr. Kenneth Neatby has never been heard to better advantage than in his solos.

Mrs. F. Barber Smith provided helpful, artistic accompaniments.

CHORUS

The personnel of the chorus is as follows:

Sopranos—Mrs. H. C. Clarke, Mrs. H. W. Dryden, Mrs. R. S. Emmott, Mrs. A. L. Howe, Mrs. P. Jones, Mrs. M. Johnston, Mrs. G. W. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. J. W. McAllister, Mrs. Wm. McLelland, Mrs. Robt. Molloy, Mrs. H. A. Powell, Dr. D. A. Newson, Miss A. Christie, Miss G. Richardson, Miss N. Skinner, Miss E. Thomas, Miss G. Tiplin.

Contraltos—Dr. Mary Atack, Mrs. H. J. Crook, Mrs. A. C. Fleming, Mrs. Geo. Kilgour, Mrs. L. Lavender, Mrs. Geo. A. Lawrence, Mrs. A. L. Miller, Mrs. Geo. V. Snell, Mrs. F. D. Sutcliffe, Mrs. F. B. Waite, Miss C. Clark, Miss E. Cook, Miss E. Griffith, Miss R. D. McLean, Miss R. Philips, Miss T. Smith, Miss S. Tiplin.

Tenors—Mr. R. Beachy, Mr. J. Clements, Mr. J. Gibson, Mr. M. Hall, Mr. A. Harrison, Mr. H. Hodges, Mr. J. Martins, Mr. J. Morris, Mr. T. Parsons, Mr. J. Price, Mr. J. Robson, Mr. T. Saul, Mr. Wm. Smith, Mr. A. Symington, Mr. George Williams, Mr. A. Wolfe, Mr. W. Woods.

Basses—Mr. C. Digney, Mr. B. Edmunds, Mr. S. Emmott, Mr. A. Flemming, Mr. F. Good, Mr. B. Griffith, Mr. T. Hopkins, Mr. D. Jones, Mr. J. Jones, Mr. J. Morgan, Mr. E. Noble, Mr. H. Ratcliffe, Mr. Geo. Snell, Mr. R. Williams, Mr. J. Young.—J.O.

"Y" Notebook

"Y" Quando Quo will meet for supper on Friday evening at five o'clock. Special business meeting has been called for after supper and a short program has been arranged.

Upsilon members will meet in the cafeteria for supper at six o'clock on Friday after which a short business meeting to make plans for the rest of the season will be held.

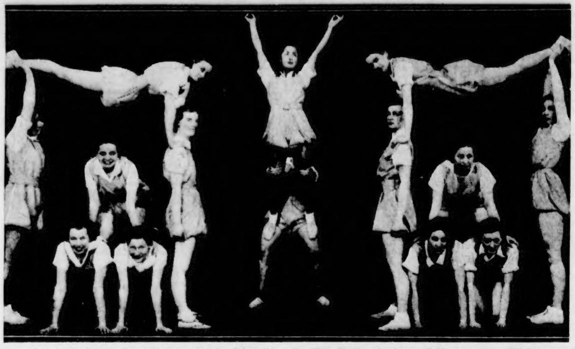
Gay parties have marked the progress of the "Y" this year and one of the most eagerly anticipated is the little informal party in the club room planned for Saturday evening when members of Beta Pi Gamma will entertain their friends at dancing. Miss Louise Field, Miss Albertine Brunelle, Miss Edythe Ewart and Miss Geraldine are in charge of arrangements.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from Merrick Drug Stores—or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

In Rehearsal For "Y" Demonstration



Looks easy, doesn't it? As a matter of fact though it has taken this special gym class at the Y.W.C.A. hours of strenuous preparation to perfect this and other clever pyramids and tableaus in which they will be seen in the physical demonstration which the "Y" is presenting in the New Empire theatre on Friday evening. Old-fashioned Maytime dancing, as well as modern interpretive numbers will intersperse this annual program to which many are looking forward. Miss Mary M. Leask, the physical director, has carried a large part of the burden of preparation.

WOULD you like me to tell you about Tibbett?" No, we wouldn't—we assured our friend simply because in the nine days that have passed since his visit to the city we have heard the story—or part of it—at least 20 times. Protests are vain—for it seems there is no use trying to stop anyone who saw or heard the "roamer brave and bold"—and as for stopping anyone who actually met him—well, it just can't be done. And so we have listened patiently while he remains rivalling the subject of what your neighbor is wearing to London, as a tea-time topic.

Our friend, it seems, is one of those impulsive persons who act first and think about it afterwards, and the story she tells goes like this: "And when I thought if I pick up that telephone receiver, get the Macdonald hotel and say 'May I speak to Mr. Tibbett?' I may even be able to hear his voice saying 'hello' to me alone." Of course, she assures us, she didn't really expect that she would be allowed to speak to him at all, and was all prepared to coax and cajole a whole string of secretaries, when the voice of the great star himself came over the line and she almost dropped the receiver in thrilled surprise.

"Hello, Mr. Tibbett speaking."

Our friend get a little incoherent at this point, but after hearing the story so many, many times, we have at last been able to piece together this much:

"Hello."

"Is there anything I can do for you?"

"No, I just called up to say 'hello'."

"Well, that's very nice of you."

And then the story really gets wild, for it seems, the next words that came over the line were these: "Well, did you want to see me?"

"Ugh, well, you'll be busy all afternoon won't you? 'Course if I could just see you for a moment—gosh! At two thirty? . . . Oh yes!—Thank you!"

We have never really been able to get beyond that point for at that moment our friend usually dashes over to buttonhole someone else with the words "Do you want me to tell you about Tibbett? . . ."

NEW YORK, May 7—Memories of a coronation of another day were revived today with the public sale of items from the trousseau of Queen Alexander, consort of Edward VII, and royal robes worn at the coronation of 1902. Chief among the items sold was the coronation robe and coronet—miniver-trimmed purple and gilded silver—worn by H.R.H. the Princess Victoria on that occasion, for which Miss Anne Greenhill paid a total of $460. Another was an Indian white and brocade gown worn by Queen Alexandria on a ride around London with Queen Victoria at the latter's diamond jubilee. It brought $80 from an agent.

Latta, Miss Edna Huntbach, Miss Margaret Webster, Miss Margaret Hodgson, Miss Winnifred Payne, Miss Gwen Pearson, Miss Agnes Rafferty, Miss Emily Brown, Miss Eva Fleming, Doris Morgan, Miss Esther Morgan, Miss Mildred Edmonds, Miss Margaret Latta, Miss Norah Smith, Miss May Latta, Miss Kathleen Hind.

COMMUNITY SCHOOL TO BE HELD AT OLDS

Marking the beginning of a forward step in education in Alberta as far as adults are concerned, the Alberta School of Community Life will hold its first classes at Olds from June 24 to July 10. For years the Olds School of Agriculture and Home Economics has been serving the young manhood and womanhood of Alberta in helping them to a better understanding of the things with which they are daily in contact. Now in cooperation with the Department of Extension of the University of Alberta in the Department of Education it can be of even greater use to its youth.

Obviously in a school of 17 days' duration it will not be possible to add greatly to the sum total of knowledge possessed by the individual, but by a proper method of presentation and discussion of the subject matter in each course, it should be possible even in such a short time to awaken the desire for further knowledge. Courses of instruction will be developed with this idea.

THE AMERICAN INDIANS ARE NOT DYING OUT

Many people are under the illusion that the American Indians are slowly dying out, and that in a few decades they will become an extinct race. A study of their population trends, made by Dr. Clark Wissler, of the American Museum of Natural History, shows that up to 1890 the Indians were dying out faster than they were being born, but since that time they have reversed their trend. Now, the Indians are increasing so fast that the government will soon be faced with the problem of providing them with more territory on which to live. Their birth rate is almost twice that of the white people.

Junior C.W.L. Has New Head In Miss Foy

Marking the passing of another of the many milestones that make up their years of service as a charitable body, members of the Junior Catholic Women's League meeting in convention in the Macdonald hotel recently, remembered with satisfaction the successful enterprises undertaken by them during the year.

Miss Ellen Marie Foy was elected president succeeding Mrs. H. Boyle upon her retirement.

FOR ORPHAN CHILDREN

Review of the year's work stated briefly gave members some idea of just what had been accomplished—Christmas and Easter-time parties have been given to the girls in O'Connell's Institute and to the boys in St. Mary's Home—and many other little affairs planned as charitable work.

Outstanding among the members for service during the year are Mrs. W. J. O'Callaghan, Mrs. A. Clermont, Mrs. Norman Broderick, Miss Helena Maher, Miss Marguerite Feguson, Miss Dorothy Prausa, Miss Celia Chisholm, Miss Jean Doherty, Miss Doris Reuter, Miss Kierman McGuire, Miss Kay McGrath, and Miss Marie Fitzgerald.

HIS EXCELLENCY SPEAKS

His Excellency Archbishop MacDonald was guest speaker and in his address he stressed the infinite value and held to be derived from individual study groups.

Contributing to the musical program are Doris Reuter, Mr. R. E. Sand and little Gloria Sturgeon.

Officers for the coming year are: Ellen Marie Foy, president; Helena Maher, Mrs. Wm. Brodrick, Margaret Bailey, vice presidents; Dorothy Dynes, recording secretary; Mercedes Mettel, corresponding secretary, Rose Norrington, treasurer; Cecilia Gillies, Eileen Ford, Beatrice McLennan, Kay McGrath, councillors.

MRS. MORTIMER SHOWS PICTURE OF KING GEORGE

Echoes of the excitement in the Old Country these days as Coronation Day draws near are finding their way eventually to Edmonton, and much attention is being directed to the marvelously life-like and impressive portrait of His Majesty, King George VI, which is being displayed in the windows of Morgan's Art Shop.

The picture is from the brush of Mrs. F. M. Mortimer of this city, and shows the King in the uniform of an Admiral of the British Navy. Mrs. Mortimer is well-known in painting and art circles in Edmonton, and her picture is one of the finest of His Majesty.

I. O. D. E. SENDS BOOKS TO RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICT

Filling a need that is felt acutely in many of the outlying districts in Alberta, members of the Elizabeth Mowat chapter of the I.O.D.E. at a recent meeting, completed a library of books that is to go to the school at Cariboo. Donations were made also to the fund for the transcription of magazines into Braille and to the fund of the blind.

At the meeting, which was held in the Macdonald hotel one afternoon this week, Mrs. Stewart Johnstone, regent of the chapter, presided. Mrs. Johnstone gave a most interesting review of the progress made at the recent I.O.D.E. convention in Calgary.

Community Leagues

PARKDALE

Interesting to all the community leagues in the city and to members of the Parkdale Community League especially will be the Coronation Day benefit carnival being arranged for Friday evening by members of the league. The affair will be held in the St. Andrew's Presbyterian church at 86 street and 117 avenue and among the numbers on the program arranged will be games and contests and dancing. Committee members in charge of particulars are Miss Margaret Clarke, Miss Betty Orr, Miss Joan Bible, Miss Margaret Burns, and Miss Peggy Trelger.

Grad Nurses Honored At Dinner Dance

To honor them on their graduation, members of the nursing class of the Misericordia of '38 entertained this year's graduates at dinner and dancing in the Corona hotel one evening this week. Dr. and Mrs. Verchomin received the guests, and convening the affair were Miss Melba McLeod, and Miss Betty Morrisoe.

Father Donahue was speaker of the evening and extended the best wishes of the nursing school to the graduates. Miss Betty Morrisoe responded to the toast to the class, and readers of the class prophecy and will were Miss Betty Morrisoe and Miss Edith Lundmark.

Those present were the Misses Margaret Brown, E. Lamourieux, Margaret Newton, H. Thibadeau, E. Standing, A. McMillan, Elsie Gregor, E. McKenzie, Evelyn Hart, N. Flood, Lilian Acheson, Edith Lundmark, Elsie Goertz, Helen Lockwood, Blanche Dumont, Joyce Stephenson, Muriel Cunningham, Pearle Viney, Bessie Hnidan, Suzanne Paradis, Elizabeth Alson, Mildred Houndle, Ethel Doucette, Caroline Greene, Irene Nahaiowski, Agnes Sharpe, Mary Jeone, Evelyn Ross, Erma Burkil, Alma Wells, Geneva McChisney, Francis Peters, Achile Poirier.

Dr. and Mrs. O'Neil, Dr. M. Weinlos, Dr. Hoare, Dr. Wood, Dr. Beauchamp, Dr. Elliott, Dr. Cawker, Dr. Ouchi, Dr. Yaochim, Dr. Heming.

"Responsibilities of Empire," a series of addresses by statesmen of Great Britain and the Commonwealth, will be broadcast by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation every Friday from 7:30 to 7:45 p.m. Edmonton time, during May and June. The broadcasts, arranged by the British Broadcasting Corporation, will be picked up by the CBC through its short-wave receiving station near Ottawa.

Problems of interest to the Empire as a whole and their relation to the rest of the world will be discussed by the ten speakers, five of whom, it is expected, will be from the Dominions. Hon. R. G. Casey, treasurer of the Commonwealth of Australia, will speak on Friday, May 9, and Right Hon. Winston Churchill will speak on Friday, May 30. The series will not be political in the party sense, though representatives of the various schools of political thought will be included.

JO-JOTTE — A Pointer

By ELY CULBERTSON

Jo-Jotte is full of situations in which the lead may cost a trick. Typical is the case of ten-small in one player's hand and ace-small in the other player's hand. If the player with the ten must lead that suit he will not make his ten as long as declarer plays correctly. The lead of the ten will lose to the ace and the lead of the small card will merely elicit opponent's small card. Then the ace will capture the ten. This situation is especially common in no trump play in which a player can afford to hold up a high card without fearing to have it ruffed away on a later round. When possible make a lead in a suit which is not thus "tenaced," and try to preserve safe leads for "exit" purposes.

There's a popular young actress who always smears her face lavishly with nourishing cream, just before she steps into her bath. She finds that the steam from the bath opens her pores so that the cream seeps in deeply. Then, with fresh tissues, she blots off the excess cream.

First Aid TO THE Ailing House

SMOOTHING A ROUGH WALL

By Roger B. Whitman

Question—A very old wall was whitewashed and then painted. It is very splotchy where the whitewash has fallen off. I have tried to have it cleaned to the original wall, but the men who worked on it gave it up as too hard a job. What is your suggestion?

Answer—When a wall finish is on as firmly as yours seems to be, there is no reason to take it off. Smooth it with sandpaper wrapped around a block of wood. Where the finish has peeled off, the edges can be smoothed down to a feathery edge. In refinishing, put a coat or two of paint on the bare places to fill them to the thickness of the surrounding paint. If the edges of the patches show, smooth them with sandpaper.

HOUSE PLANS

Question—I want to build a small house. I should like to have it strong, for I expect to live in it the rest of my life. Where can I get good plans?

Answer—The department of agriculture has published a pamphlet containing a number of excellent plans for small houses. You can get it from the superintendent of documents, Washington, D.C. for ten cents; ask for Farmers' Bulletin 1738, "Farmhouse Plans".

The Federal Housing Administration has published the plans for a few small houses in its technical bulletin No. 4. You will find this bulletin very useful, for it describes the details of good construction. The title is "Principles of Planning Small Houses". You can get it at any F.H.A. office, or by writing to the office in Washington.

CEILING FINISH

Question—My plaster ceilings are 1½ years old, and have never been finished. Some people tell me to finish them with calcimine, and others say to use paint. How do these compare?

Answer—As there is no wear on a ceiling, calcimine is in very common use. Another choice is cold water paint, especially the kinds made with casein, which are washable. A single coat of either one should be sufficient. Oil paint is more expensive to buy and takes more time to put on. One good finish for ceilings is wall-cloth, which has an oil paint finish. Cracks in the ceiling are not so likely to show.

Roger B. Whitman has prepared a leaflet on refinishing painted furniture. Send a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope to him care of this paper for it.

Natives Loss Heavy In British Clash

SIMLA, India, Hay 7.—British troops campaigning against the Fakir of Ipi and his rebellious tribesmen in northwestern Waziristan killed 200 and gravely wounded 157 of his men in clashes in the Kahisora valley between April 23 and May 3, it was reported here today.

Dispatches indicated fighting was continuing. In recent days tribal warriors opened fire on British military camps at Mir Ali and Tal.

Tips On Freshening Your Faded Make-Up

TEMPLETON FOX
Radio star fresh as posy.

By GLADYS GLAD

We have National Health week, National Cleanup week, National Doughnut week, National Safety week, and a score of others. The latest is National Ice Cream week, believe it or not! Oddly enough, it was 'way back in colonial times that the American fondness for this delicacy originated. Lovely Dolly Madison was one of the first to serve it to her guests.

Mrs. Madison had a two-fold purpose in serving this delicacy. She knew that its delightful flavor would greatly please her guests, and she also figured that, because of its coolness, it would make the wilted-looking belles perk up and appear fresh again.

There was a certain amount of logic in this reasoning, for frozen foods and liquids really are refreshing. But the modern party girl also relies upon external measures in order to keep bright and fresh looking during an entire evening.

What girls do, usually, when they begin to look wilted, is to step into the ladies' lounge, whip out the old vanity case, and dab some powder, rouge and lipstick on their faces. And usually, that doesn't improve their appearance very much. It doesn't make them feel any fresher or look any prettier.

DO THOROUGH JOB

If you're going out for an evening of entertainment, it's my advice that you make your freshening a thorough job when you begin to wilt. There's a gadget now out that is ideal for this purpose. It looks like a compact, convenient to carry in your purse, but when you open it, you find it is filled with little pads like very thin powder puffs.

When your makeup needs replenishing, you simply peel one of these pads off the top and wipe your face with it, and in a second it is thoroughly cleansed and ready for fresh makeup. The little pads, it seems, are drenched with a cleansing agent and a mild astringent, so that your face is refreshed as well as cleansed. The pads are discarded after being used once, and there are enough in the little compact to provide many a face cleansing.

If you have more time at your disposal, and your ladies' lounge offers greater cosmetic facilities, you can make a more thorough job of refreshing yourself. To do the thing rightly, you should first remove every bit of your old, stale makeup with a bit of cold cream. Relax for a few minutes after the cream application, to rest yourself a bit. Then wipe off all the grease and grime thoroughly with a bit of cleansing tissue.

The next thing to do is to dash plenty of clear, cold water over your face. You all know what a grand waker-upper cold water is! It will not only wake you up, however, but will also tone up your skin beautifully, and make you feel as bright as a new penny.

Then, after drying your face, apply your fresh powder, rouge, lipstick and eye cosmetics, if you use them. Do your usual skillful job with your cosmetics. And that best beau of yours will probably be so impressed by your freshness and vivacity that he'll go for you, hook, line and sinker!

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure," "Beauty Culture" and "Lovely Limbs" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin FOR EACH, to cover cost of printing and handling. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

Bulletin Patterns

Tiniest Canape Has Huge Possibilities

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Afternoon weddings have their own special tidbits. A buffet table with flowers, a tray of canapes, a bride's cake or even a handsome wedding cake in the center, gleaming glasses for champagne or other beverage—behold, the wedding feast awaits the afternoon bride and groom. Simple, yet properly dressed in wedding garments; requires little service, yet is formal enough to honor the occasion.

Gaston Koch calls himself the "Canape King" and hails from Switzerland. His passport proves the Switzerland claim, now let's examine him on his right to the title of "Canape King." Brides-to-be should listen with wrapt attention.

WHAT MAKES A CANAPE

Step up, King Koch. What is a canape?

"A California artichoke bottom with a layer of Russian caviar, garnished with tiny pearl onions; a slice of Alaska salmon on a crisp reception biscuit; or a long fillet of anchovy topped with a strip of sweetened Spanish pimiento, decorated with two pearl onions."

So far, so delicious. The jury craves more evidence.

"A canape can be a Norwegian cocktail sardine decked with a strip of pimiento; a large shrimp flowered with a small West Indian burr-gherkin; Italian anti-pasto paste spread on a flaky card party biscuit and garnished with an onion-stuffed olive; or again, an artichoke heart snuggling inside a curved anchovy."

The jury is in perfect agreement. Have you anything to say for yourself, King Koch of All-The Canapes, before being sent on your way with honor?

"Yes, if it please the court—and I know it will—a canape is also a curled anchovy, an olive stuffed with toasted jordan almonds and a tiny cocktail shrimp, all on the same caviar toast."

Sunday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Sliced bananas with stewed strawberries, Canadian bacon, rice muffins, marmalade, coffee, milk.

DINNER: Tomato juice cocktail, assorted canapes, spring chicken saute in butter, stuffed Idaho potatoes, green peas, asparagus salad, vinaigrette sauce, rhubarb tarts with whipped cream, coffee, milk.

Your Children - By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Nursery schools, their advantages and disadvantages, were the topic of conversation not long ago among some young mothers at a party.

Half a dozen young matrons shivered and declared they would feel they were farming out the baby. Then another young mother told her story. It went something like this:

O. R. Barton

"I had to go out and get a job, you see, and there was no one but Aunt Jessie to look after Patsy.

"Aunt Jessie is a dear, but she doesn't know a thing about children, besides I knew that being shut in the house all day with a stirring child would drive her frantic. And it wasn't fair to Patsy, either. The little thing gets along fine with Auntie, but I knew she'd miss me.

"I thought it over night-and-day for weeks. Then one day I went to the nursery school, about six blocks from our flat, and looked it over. This one only ran afternoons."

Her intelligent eyes went over her audience and she drew a deep breath. "Well, I decided to send Patsy."

"What did they do?" they asked her.

"Nothing and everything. Someway or other I got the impression that all our little children are falsely placed at home. There they were in their own world.

"Out on the playground, they played with their little wagons and toys as peacefully as though they'd forgotten the whole world. The teachers stood by, but no one interfered. There were about fifty children and sometimes they played in little groups, sometimes alone. Now and then there would be a little spat, but a teacher would soon fix it up.

"No nervous mothers around saying, 'Now do this, darling. Oh, don't do that, sweetheart.' The head teacher told me about one little boy who was eating and sleeping and behaving beautifully, because his mother had overdone her solicitations at home and in despair she had brought the nervous little fellow to see if they could do anything."

"They speak so quietly and calmly that the tots don't get rattled, you see. They give them their naps, and their milk and crackers, and the little things are grand. They do what the the others do, and they seem to feel very important about it. It's all so calm and soothing. They love company—you know, children do—and they love to do what all the rest do. But that's not all.

"I've discovered still more since Patsy started. They know just what each child seems to need to make him feel better. Patsy was a 'fraidy cat, but now she isn't scared of her shadow any more. They appear not to notice, but really they watch each child carefully for traits, and then go about doing the best thing, without the child suspecting it."

I quote this because I believe the nursery school is valuable, not to take the place of the home, but in many cases, to supplement it, with excellent results.

DOROTHY DIX Says:

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 22 years old and have a job at which I earn $12 a week. My girl friend insists that we should get married right away, but I don't think that we should marry on an income so small. My parents tell me that we should wait two more years until I have enough money to buy my furniture and pay cash for it. The girl thinks that we could start out and buy a little bit at a time. My parents have been very good to me and they feel pretty badly about my marrying before I am ready to. I expect to get a raise in salary soon. Please tell me what to do.

HENRY.

Answer:

Well, Henry, if you will take my advice, you will put off the wedding until you are better able to afford to marry. Don't let the girl rush you into marriage before you are ready for it. Marriage is like any other undertaking. It has to be properly financed in order to succeed.

I get hundreds of letters from boys like you who are being virtually kidnapped by girls who are determined to marry them right away, no matter whether they have anything to live on or not. Sometimes these boys write me that they have no jobs. Sometimes they are schoolboys who will have to give up all chances of getting an education if they marry.

Sometimes the boy has an old mother and little brothers and sisters to support and cannot possibly feed another mouth. The boy himself sees the folly of marrying under such conditions, but it makes no difference to the girl. She is hellbent on marriage and she forces the boy into it against his better judgment, unless he has courage and backbone enough to refuse to let her ruin his life by a marriage that is bound to end in disaster.

Probably these silly romantic girls think love is enough and that they can stay their stomachs on kisses when they are hungry. But they soon find out that they crave food after marriage just as much as they did before; that they have to have a roof to cover them and clothes to wear, and that when they lack the ordinary comforts and decencies of life that they are more concerned with the states of their bodies than they are with the states of their hearts.

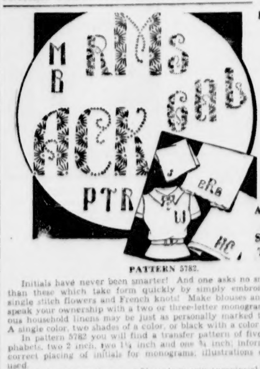
Nobody is sentimental when they are hungry. Nobody quotes poetry when the gripping subject of interest is how to stave off the landlord. And even a Lady Love doesn't look so good when she can't afford a good dress or a fresh fingerwave.

These girls who shanghai boys into marrying them before they have the price of a wedding ring don't even play the game honestly. Such a girl will force a boy into marrying her, knowing he has no way to support her, and then nag him about having no job and complain about not having the things she is used to, and when things get too bad she will go back to Mother.

The boy who marries before he is ready to marry handicaps himself in every way. If he has a family to support, he can never save any money. He will always be harried by debt that will take the very heart out of him. He will have to stick to any poor job he gets because he will be afraid to give it up in order to look for a better one. He can't afford to take chances. There is no truer saying than that a young man married is a young man marred. This goes double for a poor boy.

DOROTHY DIX.

Initials Have Never Been Smarter



Household Arts by Alice Brooks

Linens and Dainty Accessories Easily Smartened This Way

PATTERN 5782.

Initials have never been smarter! And one asks no smarter initials than these which take form quickly by simply embroidering a few single stitch flowers and French knots! Make blouses and hankies bespeak your ownership with a two or three-letter monogram, while various household linens may be just as personally marked this easy way. A single color, two shades of a color, or black with a color are all smart.

In pattern 5782 you will find a transfer pattern of five complete alphabets, two 2 inch, two 1¼ inch and one ¾ inch; information on the correct placing of initials for monograms; illustrations of all stitches used.

To obtain this pattern send 21 cents in coin (provincial tax included) to The Edmonton Bulletin, Household Arts Dept. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

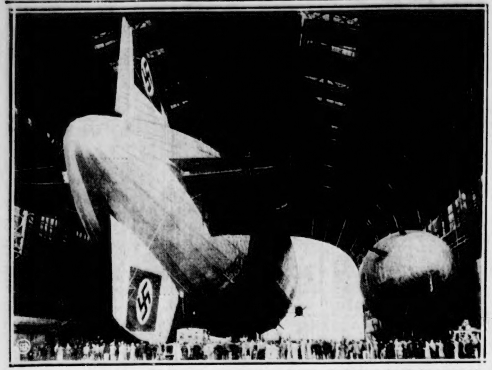
Once Queen Of Skyways Lies Ruined



The once honored guest of the U.S. Navy, the record-making dirigible Hindenburg dwarfs its room-mate, the little blimp at right, in the great hangar at Lakehurst, N.J., that is ordinarily used to house the retired Zeppelin Los Angeles. To get an idea of the size of the world's largest "bird," as it was, compare it with the spectators lined up in the foreground.

Zeppelin Nineteenth Dirigible Disaster In Past 23 Years

WASHINGTON, May 7. — There have been 18 major dirigible disasters in the last 23 years—three of the major ones involving the U.S. dirigibles Akron, Macon and Shenandoah.

The disaster list:

Feb. 12, 1935—The navy dirigible Macon was destroyed off the Pacific coast, two died, 81 saved.

April 4, 1933—United States navy dirigible Akron crashed in electrical storm off New Jersey coast, 73 dead, three survivors.

R-101 EXPLODED

Oct. 4, 1930 — British dirigible R-101 exploded over France while en route from England to India, 46 dead.

May 25, 1928—Italian dirigible Italia crashed in Arctic in flight to North Pole; eight dead.

Sept. 3, 1925—United States dirigible Shenandoah, formerly ZR-1, wrecked in storm in Ohio; 14 killed.

Dec. 21, 1923—French dirigible Dixmude, presumably struck by lightning over Mediterranean; 52 killed.

Feb. 21, 1922—United States dirigible Rome, bought by United States from Italy, crashed in flames near Hampton Roads army base; 34 killed.

Aug. 24, 1921—Dirigible ZR-2, bought in England for United States, frame buckled over Humber; 42 killed.

BRITISH DIRIGIBLE

Jan. 29, 1921—British dirigible R-34, wrecked in gale in Howden, England; no lives lost.

July 21, 1919—Dirigible burned over Chicago; 10 killed.

July 15, 1919—British airship NS-11, struck by lightning over North sea; 12 killed.

June 20, 1914—Airship and airplane collided at Vienna; 9 killed.

Sept. 9, 1913—Zeppelin L-1, destroyed over Heligoland.

28 LOST LIVES

Oct. 17, 1913—Zeppelin L-2, exploded over Johannisthal airdrome; 28 killed.

July 2, 1912—Balloon Akron, exploded at Atlantic City; 5 killed.

Besides the Zeppelin L-1 and L-2, Count Zeppelin lost four other great peace-time dirigibles in accidents, the Zeppelins 3 and 6 and the Deutschlands 1 and 2.

ZEPP BLAST HARD BLOW FOR GERMANY

Disaster Story Not Believed At First—Service to Continue

BERLIN, May 7.—Stunned by the Hindenburg disaster, official Germany's first utterance early today was an announcement the Zeppelin service will continue.

A government communique recorded Germany's and the world's distress over the tragedy but pointed out an airship already is under construction "to carry the German flag as ambassador from continent to continent."

WORLD MOURNS

"With deep distress, the German people and the whole world will receive the news of the destruction of the proud airship Hindenburg," the communique said.

"German airship navigation, which heretofore achieved incomparable and unique successes in opening airways over the South and North Atlantic, now unfortunately also is not spared from disaster such as afflicted airship navigation in other countries in recent decades."

Word of the tragedy spread consternation through a shocked and at first disbelieving Germany.

The shock was all the greater because the country, so many years free from airship catastrophies, almost had begun to believe it was immune.

NOT BELIEVED

Officials at the Zeppelin's home port of Frankfort at first refused to believe the news.

"We just got radiograms from the Hindenburg at seven p.m. and eight p.m. (11 a.m. and noon M.S.T.), saying all was well," one said. "There must be some mistake."

Dismayed Berlin officials expressed he quick hope the extent of the disaster would be less than first reports indicated.

Shortly before two a.m. (six p.m. M.S.T. Thursday) the Zeppelin office at Frankfort, denying any disaster had occurred, issued an "official landing report" timing the Hindenburg's arrival at Lakehurst at 10.30 p.m. Thursday night (2.30 p.m. M.S.T.)

Dr. Hugo Eckener, veteran airship commander who was in charge of the Hindenburg on her first flight, could not be reached immediately.

Among the passengers aboard well known here were John Pannes passenger traffic manager of the Hamburg American line and North German Lloyd in New York and in charge of the Zeppelin passenger service, and his wife.

Condition of Mrs. A. U. G. Bury, who has been seriously ill in the Misericordia Hospital for some days, was reported unchanged on Friday morning.

Mystery Cloaks Accident Cause As Zepp Blasts

the ground, women spectators screamed and covered their eyes in horror.

Today, a few hundred yards from the blackened tangle of wreckage, the dead lay row on row in the old-stained garage that was hastily transformed into a temporary morgue.

SOME HURLED CLEAR

In the seconds before flames enveloped the silvery fabric of the world's largest dirigible, some of the passengers and crew jumped, crawled or were hurled clear of the falling ship.

Captain Ernest Lehmann, a Zeppelin commander in the Great War, and commander of the ship on previous voyages, stumbled from the wreck, gravely injured.

So was Captain Max Pruss, the veteran airman making his first voyage as Lehmann's successor in command.

Lehmann made the trip in an advisory capacity.

What happened to the airship that had made so many safe crossings in this and other countries remained a mystery.

Carl Weigand, skipper of the S.S. Deutshland, who rushed to Paul Kimball hospital at Lakewood to see Captain Lehmann, quoted him as saying:

"I don't know what happened. She just went up."

"Something strange caused that tragedy," said Gill Robb Wilson, state aviation director, announcing immediate Federal State investigations.

EXPLOSION ASTERN

There was an explosion, he said, in No. 2 gas cell stern.

"In all my 21 years of flying experience I have seen crackups, explosions, flaming airplanes," he said, "but nothing measures up to the explosion of the Hindenburg."

Fred D. Fagg, director of the Federal Bureau of Air Commerce, arrived from New York and said an inquiry would be held today or tomorrow.

The 800-foot long swastika-emblazoned ship, graceful despite her bulk, sailed into her North American port in a rain storm, more than 12 hours late because of headwinds which cut down speed over the Atlantic.

The ship nosed up toward the mooring mast and two lines went down at 4:20 p.m. (M.S.T.). Passengers, spotting relatives and greeters on the field 200 feet below, waved gaily.

Three minutes later—explosion.

The ship settled to earth, its bag now a solid mass of flame, its terrified, bewildered occupants shrieking. The stories of the tragedy were all the same.

"Blinding flash," said Herbert O'Laughlin of Chicago, a survivor.

"A noise that sounded like bullets coming out of the gondolas," said Robert Seeling, a photographer on the ground.

The disaster, writing a fiery finis to the Hindenburg's 135,000 miles of safe transit across the Atlantic, was the first major wreck to involve a lighter-than-air ship carrying paying passengers.

All other crashes, in the 78 years since Count Zeppelin began the use of dirigibles, involved military or naval craft.

GRIM AND NERVOUS

In the Zeppelin company's office, beside the hangar, a score of Germans, grim and nervous, conversed gutterally. An officer with his head swathed in crimson-stained bandages roared thick German into a telephone.

Eleven times, a truck backed up to the hangar. Each time, it brought another charred body.

Graphic descriptions of the disaster came from eye-witnesses.

"All was serene on the ground and ship when suddenly flames burst from the Zeppelin's tail," said Dr. Carl A. Gesswern, of Matawan.

"Her rear half puffed up and burned, then the front bulged out and burst into flames. In less than a minute she was on the ground, dropping like a deflated parachute."

As the flaming mass plunged downward, there rose a cry to the ground crew: "Run for your lives."

The first bewilderment gone, they ran back to the blazing, still exploding wreckage.

Mrs. Herman Doehner of Mexico City told Point Pleasant hospital aides she and two sons were in the dining room when the first blast occurred. She threw her sons out of the window and then, with the ship six feet off the ground, jumped herself. A daughter, Irene Doehner, died in hospital this morning and Herman Doehner was not reported in the early survival list.

Coronation Passengers Were to Fly Last Night

NEW YORK, May 7—They thought it was a joke.

Seventy men and women, watching their bags "weighed in" for the outgoing trip at midnight last night, wouldn't believe the Hindenburg had exploded.

Waiting in the lobby of the Biltmore Hotel for the taxi trip to Lakehurst, they grinned and giggled when newspapermen told them they wouldn't make the trip to Frankfort.

FOR CORONATION

Most of them were women bound for the Coronation in London.

"They're kidding—it's their idea of a joke," a man cried.

Sid Sands, shoe salesman from St. Louis, had made last-minute plans to hop the Hindenburg for a business excursion in Czechoslovakia.

"This is the most horrible disaster I ever heard of in my life," he said.

OLD TRAVELLER

Alex Manetas of Memphis, Tenn., was going to his old home in Athens, Greece. "I made the trip both ways last summer," he says.

"I've been getting grandstand Coronation tickets near Westminster Abbey since last September," lamented Mrs. Helen St. John Orr of New York.

CITY CHINESE THREATENED BY ALLEGED THUG

City police are searching for a man who may be a desperate, gun-toting criminal, or merely a practical joker. George Wing, Chinese proprietor of a 101st street restaurant, is telling of his encounter with what he believes to have been a drug-crazed gunman.

Shortly before 10 p.m. Thursday, a short, lean-faced man, wearing dark-rimmed glasses, walked into the cafe. His right hand was in the pocket of his coat, and seemed to be holding a gun. He pointed the pocket threateningly at Wing, and ordered him to stand in the corner.

Shaking with fear Wing obeyed. But help was at hand as an employee of the cafe had slipped out the rear door and came back with the proprietor of a nearby cafe. As they entered, the alleged gunman turned, dashed out the door and fled eastward.

Constable Harry Nelson, of the city police, investigated. Police have a good description of the man.

Wing had been held up at the point of a gun two years ago.

The Inquiring Reporter

A Bulletin Inquiring Reporter fan, J. Tonner, of 12667 125 street, has asked to have answers taken to his question, "What is your opinion of children three or four years old broadcasting on amateur programs?" Here are the responses:

J. TONNER sponsor of query: I contend it is unfair to the said children and the public alike, as the majority of the youngsters have no real training or talent for this work and it is tiresome listening to these programs. It has got to the stage where we have to tune in to a program from the United States to hear a good show of this sort.

D. CALVIN, retired: He is right. Ninety-nine per cent of these kid radio and amateur vaudeville "performers" aren't even good home entertainers. It is even pitiful.

JENNIE CARSON, petite steno: Oh, I think I rather enjoy these kiddie broadcasts. Even the mistakes the youngsters make are amusing. Besides, the programs are so wholesome and refreshing that I am certain they please many people.

BILL HART, druggist: Isn't it nauseating to hear some kid crooning some blues song? These youngsters cease to be children and are incapable of being artists. They simply become bores and nuisances. The sooner they get off these programs the better.

JEAN WILSON, clerk: Kiddies become affected and theatrical by being starred on these programs. They begin to strut around as if they are better than other children, simply because they know how to whine nasally into a microphone. It's bad for them and worse for the listener.

ALFRED CLARK, newsboy: It's the folks at home that are to blame. If they weren't so anxious to boast about how talented their youngsters are they would let them live normal, healthy lives which would be the best thing for all concerned.

Steady improvement in business conditions, as reflected in the growing volume of sales handled by his company, was reported by Stuart S. Lee, of Toronto, general sales manager of Massey-Harris Co., Ltd., who spent Wednesday in the city conferring with J. A. Hilts, manager of the Edmonton branch. Mr. Lee is now on his annual inspection tour.

Thomas Walker, city assessor and tax collector, is asking city council to decide whether a civic census will be taken this year, the estimated cost being approximately $3,000. This question will be dealt with by council at its regular meeting on Monday.

CORONATION STREET CAR RUNS TODAY

Edmonton downton sections will commence to take on a gala appearance Friday as decorations are hung for coronation week. Already many places of business are co-operating with the Civic Coronation Street Decorations Committee under the direction of Colonel Louis Scott by hanging clusters of flags and other patriotic emblems.

The Coronation street car will be seen upon the streets Friday and for the days following until May 12. This car, for which decorations were arranged by Thomas Ferrier, was planned by Alderman James Fry. It will run on every route in the city, but citizens will not be allowed to ride on it.

The action brought by Thomas Testo, Edmonton, against Tony Brkick, Luscar, to recover $315 owing for rent was adjourned until Thursday next to enable the plaintiff to bring a witness from Luscar. The case was heard by His Honor Judge Bury.

E. C. Wood, of Montreal, director of the Imperial Tobacco Company, is a visitor in the city, registered at the Macdonald hotel. He is accompanied by Charles U. Haywood, of Calgary.

FINE WEATHER FORECAST HERE

Northwest breeze which drove rain and snow clouds across Edmonton and central Alberta Wednesday night and Thursday swept the skies clear on Friday morning.

Brilliant skies here and throughout the Peace River country presaged further fine weather and the official forecast was "clear and cool."

Highest temperature on Thursday was 40 degrees, which sank to a low of 31 degrees from 4 to 6 a.m. Friday, recovering to 39 at 9 a.m.

Rainfall here was .56 of an inch. Today's barometer reading was 27.90 up.

Nature Protects the Eyes

By Jackson Bros. Optometrist
J. E. THOMAS, R.O.

Nature has taken particular precautions to protect the human eye. It is set back in the socket in the head, with the nose, cheek bones, and forehead standing out to help keep it safe from any side blows. The eyelashes keep out dust, and the lids close in a flash to shut out bits of foreign matter that are blowing toward the eye. Furthermore, the tear glands wash the eye and lubricate it to keep it clean and comfortable. These tears are carried away through very small openings at the nasal side of each eye and are called the tear ducts. Sometimes these ducts become blocked and will not allow the tears to run away, therefore they flow over the cheeks. This is quite noticeable when a person cries, the flow of tears is so great that the ducts cannot carry them away fast enough.

When nature has taken so many precautions to protect the human eye, why should human beings abuse them so much? The majority of human beings take them for granted, and give them secondary consideration.

If your eyes bother you in any way, have them attended to at once. Don't put it off, because the longer you do, the greater the strain will be, and this in turn will be very injurious to your health and happiness.

Jackson Bros.' eyesight clinic is open for your convenience every day except Sundays and holidays, and you are assured of a thorough eyesight examination by a registered optometrist, one who has secured his degree by University examinations and has the finest instruments known to science at his disposal.

To reliable people we extend our easy payment plan, enabling them to wear their glasses while paying for them.

For your appointment, write, call or phone 21747.

CITY SCHOOLS TO CELEBRATE CROWNING DAY

Children to Express Loyalty to Their Majesties on Tuesday

Brilliant pageantry, stirring choral singing and expressions of devotion make stirring Coronation programs in all of the city public schools on Tuesday afternoon, the day before Coronation Day.

Sample programs which have been received in the office of G. A. McKee, O.B.E., superintendent of schools, show marked enterprise on the part of both pupils and teachers in organizing celebrations of brilliance and originality.

Outstanding among these is the program at the Allendale school, a one-room school at the south end of the city, with about 30 pupils, in which a full coronation ceremony will be staged and a king and queen crowned, with all the ritual attending the real ceremony in Westminster Abbey. Crowns, coronets, robes and complete costumes for the ceremony will be worn by every pupil.

At high schools, patriotic addresses will be the main features of the programs, but more colorful fetes will be held in the elementary sections.

CORONATION HYMN

The Coronation Hymn, composed by H. R. Leaver, city high school teacher, and the Dominion Hymn, composed by J. N. Eagleson, school music supervisor, will be sung.

Garneau school will have a flag raising ceremony and McDougall school will have an assembling march, "Pomp and Circumstance." Speakers include Lt.-Col. E. H. Strickland, A.D.C., Rev. H. A. McLeod and Rev. C. G. Stone.

Request Made To Keep Camps Open

Representations have been made by the provincial government to keep open the highways construction camps in various parts of the province, involving a total of 1500 men, until July 1, according to Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer.

The agreement between Dominion and provincial governments for operation of these camps expired on April 30 and the application for extension is for two months.

There are camps in the Jasper, Whitecourt, Nordegg, Crow's Nest and Drumheller areas.

His Honor Judge Lucien Dubuc left Friday for Athabaska to hold sittings of the district court in the northern town.

Coming Home

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

WINNIPEG, Man., May 7.—Enroute to his home in Edmonton, where he will spend the summer, Clarence Campbell, well known hockey referee who has recently finished his first season in the National Hockey League, passed through Winnipeg Friday morning over Canadian National lines.

"I enjoyed my first season in the N.H.L. very much," stated Mr. Campbell, in response to a question. "Being down there for the first time to handle the whistle before critical crowds, I naturally felt at first I was rather 'on the spot.' However, I was treated splendidly by all concerned. Not only by the crowds, but by the team managements and players. I will always appreciate this kindness as I found it so helpful.

"However, I can look back to a few occasions when I don't suppose I pleased everybody, but I called 'em as I saw em.' Generally speaking, I would say it was a most successful season, with some magnificent hockey in the playdowns to the Stanley cup.

"There are tougher jobs in the world than being a hockey referee, but I just can't think of them for the moment," he said with a smile, "but I enjoyed the work and hope to be back again next season."

Sittings of the supreme court, civil division, which open on Monday, May 17, will be taken by Mr. Justice Tweedie it was announced Friday.

On legal business in Edmonton, C. G. Purvis, Viking lawyer, was a visitor at the court house Friday.

Coronation Day Plans for City Are Attractive

Sparing no effort to make Edmonton's celebration of the coronation something long to be remembered, especially by school children who are witnessing such an event for the first time, the Civic Coronation Committee has a complete program and is all set for the great day's events.

Celebrations will really begin on the evening of Tuesday, May 11, when a basketball game will take place at the arena with the Wichita Thurstons pitted against the Commercial Grads.

Arising Wednesday morning to face the gala day, citizens will flock to Diamond Park, to hear it rededicated with the name of Coronation Park, by His Worship the Mayor, who will also plant a tree, either a mountain ash or an elm from the city nursery in the opening ceremony of the day at 9:30 a.m.

On this occasion also the main road through the park will be renamed King George's Road. At the same time as the central ceremony is going on all similar ceremonies will be taking place in community districts on a smaller scale as all communities have arranged to plant a certain number of trees to commemorate the day.

MORNING PARADE

Immediately following will be the morning parade of military, patriotic and national organizations from the heart of Edmonton to the grounds south of the parliament buildings where governmental, military and religious observances will be conducted at 11:30.

Assembling on Jasper avenue, just east of 101 street at 10:15, the parade will move south down 101 street, and will be joined at 10:25 by the largest contingent of members of the Edmonton Garrison to parade here in recent years.

Legionaires will gather at Memorial Hall in preparation for the parade at 9:45. They will wear Legion hats and medals and carry their colors. Through courtesy of Col. Louis Scott the Legion of Frontiersmen will escort the men in parade formation. C. H. Gleave will be marshal and an invitation is extended any unattached ex-serviceman to report and join the parade.

Veterans of the Royal North-West Mounted Police and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police will parade as a unit in the morning coronation ceremonies, next Wednesday. The veterans will fall in at 10:15 a.m. on marker "G" at 101A avenue.

FIREFIGHTERS ARE NOW SAFE

Three volunteer fire fighters who had been fighting fire at Fraspur on Wednesday and were reported missing early Thursday, walked into Winfield later in the day and declared they never had been lost.

"All quiet" reports were received from the fire fronts in the Winfield-Breton area. Dispossessed villagers and mill hands of Norbuck and Fraspur are moving towards rehabilitation as much as possible. A number of homes escaped destruction when fire swept the villages but it will take some time to rebuild homes for those who lost their houses.

A special coronation church service arranged by the Western Rose L.O.B.A. will take place in McDougall United Church, Sunday. Six Loyal Orange Lodges and the three Ladies' Benevolent Associations of the Order will participate. Members will meet at the church vestry, dressed in regalia, at seven o'clock and will parade into the church, led by the Juvenile Association. Rev. M. K. McMinn, minister of McDougall Church, will conduct the service.

Looking Them Over

It's Derby Time

Color Splashed

Some Figures

TOMORROW will see one of the world's most colorful races, the Kentucky Derby, an event that time, legend and fiction have made into a race that seems to bring all the romance, thrills and great three-year-olds of the American track together in one grand splash of color. Today Louisville is in a racing fever. Colonels, stately and some that are badly bent, will be sipping mint juleps and arguing. Millionaires are arriving by plane, while touts and stable boys are dropping in off freights. Big shot gamblers are wagering thousands and little shots are laying their last five spot on the line. Touts are peddling phony tips to suckers and anyone with the smell of a stable on him is being besieged for dope right from the feed boxes.

Fortunes have been won and lost before on the Derby and the same will happen tomorrow. Some of the big shot gamblers will be catching a freight out of town after the race, while a few stable boys will ride away by plane. There will be groups pulling for different horses like organized cheer sections at a football game. War Admiral, co-favorite with Reaping Reward, will have a section of boosters known as "Maryland War Admiral Boosters", who wheeled into Louisville on a special train from Maryland, his home stamping grounds.

War Admiral is one of the fastest sons of Man o' War and has early speed that many are counting on to get him clear of the big field of starters in the first few jumps. This will save him from the bumping and crowding that beats many horses as the field fights for position coming down the stretch for the first time. This is a trait inherited from his famous sire. In addition, War Admiral is a proven mudder and will be right at home regardless of what the track is like.

Reaping Reward on the other hand has won most of his races by coming from behind with a sensational burst of reserve speed. He beat the highly-rated Pompoon in the Narragansett Futurity and this is largely responsible for the position he holds in the betting. Reaping Reward is owned by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars who bought him in 1935 as a yearling for $5,000. Last season he won her $56,965. He is the son of Sickle-Dustwhirl.

Pompoon Is Big Question

POMPOON, the winter book favorite for the Derby, became a headache to his backers when he was badly beaten in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica track, New York, on May 1. This was the race in which Jockey Johnny Longden of Calgary brought Melodist down in front for a sensational upset. The U.S. experts considered this race a test of whether or not Pompoon could go the Derby distance of a mile and a quarter. He set a new record for the six and a half furlongs Belmont Futurity last fall of 1:16 2-5. His owner is J. H. Louchheim. However there is a section of the bettors who feel that Pompoon might not have been fully extended at Jamaica with an eye to better odds in the Derby.

Then there is picturesque old Colonel E. R. Bradley seeking to win a fifth Derby with Brooklyn. He is reported to have bet Louchheim $10,000 to $11,000 that Brooklyn would beat Pompoon. Bradley won his first Derby in 1921 with Behave Yourself, his second in 1926 with Bubbling Over, this third in 1932 with Burgoo King and his fourth in 1933 with Broker's Tip.

If you want to do a little forecasting, here are a few figures that will come in handy. Twenty Grand set the record time for the Derby course at 2:01 4-5 in 1931. The total list of Derby winners comprises 52 colts, seven geldings and one filly. This filly was Regret, who turned in the fast time of 2:05 2-5 in 1915. She was the favorite and paid off 13 to 5 in a field of 16.

The longest priced winner of the Derby was Donerail in 1913 who returned $184.90 for a $2 nose ticket.

Steele Unable to Battle Genevese

TORONTO, May 6.—Jack Allen, manager of Gordon Wallace, Canadian welterweight boxing champion, yesterday said his fighter would not be able to battle Frankie Genovese, Toronto, in a title fight promoted by Jack Gordon for May 14.

The manager explained the Vancouver fighter's right hand, injured in a recent fight with Sammy Luftspring, Toronto, was not in condition for a fight May 14.

Junior League, Charlie Pollard director, May 11, A.Z.A. vs. Rossdale Juniors at Diamond Park; Calder vs. British Consols at Calder.

Winnipeg Banquets Junior Puck Champs

WINNIPEG, May 7.—Winnipeg Monarchs, junior hockey champions of Canada, were tendered a complimentary dinner by the young men's section of the Winnipeg Board of Trade. Nearly 450 attended.

Monarchs were presented with the C.H.A. Memorial cup won at Toronto in the Dominion final with Copper Cliff Redmen, the Abbott Memorial cup, emblem of Western championship, and the Turnbull cup for the Manitoba title. Other presentations to all team members included leather windbreakers, wrist watches and signet rings bearing the City of Winnipeg crest.

GRAD-O-GRAM NO. 6

"The cross-fire style of play shown by the Wichita Thursons was just about the fastest ever seen in a national tournament." Be at the Arena on May 11 and see it for yourselves.

COMMERCIAL GRADUATES' CLUB

Right Elbow Kept Close to Body Will Eliminate Hook from Drive

By BYRON NELSON

Winner of the 1937 Augusta Masters' Tournament

SUCCESS in the Glen Garden Country Club caddies' tournament spurred me on and the following spring—March, 1929—I entered my first honest-to-goodness tournament at the Katy Lake course, a public links in Fort Worth.

The Katy Lake course was short. It measured only 6,000 yards, and had sand greens. I won the medal with 68, and then lost my first match the next day.

But that 68 made a bit of an impression at Glen Garden and the members voted me an honorary membership. From caddy to member in two-and-a-half years! I was mighty proud.

I was in high school, but wanted to get out and make a living. My folks weren't poor, but they weren't wealthy, and I was one of those young fellows who believes he is a drag on his parents. So one of the members got me a job as a file clerk in the accounting office of the Fort Worth & Denver Railroad. It made golfing tougher.

I had to work from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and that didn't leave much time for golf. It took me half hour to get home by trolly and another 10 or 15 minutes to get out to the golf course. But I went out there about four or five afternoons a week and practiced until dark.

KEEP CLUB IN CHECK

I'd practice driving first, and putt last because when it got dark I could lay a handkerchief over the cup and putt for the white cloth, but I couldn't drive in the dark. I'd lose all my balls, and a railway clerk can't be losing a dozen golf balls a day.

In that fall of 1929 I played in the club tournament and won it. I shot an 81. It was two strokes above my caddy-winning score of the previous winter, but I was playing better. My irons were stronger and straighter. My putting was still steady. Only my drives were off.

My left side was collapsing. That was that overswinging again. To stop overswinging, I concentrated on keeping the right arm close to the body in the backswing, all the time keeping the left arm straight.

This prevented the club from going back farther than the horizontal position.

It also stopped me from turning the hands over in a rolling motion which closed the face of the club as it came into the ball.

I concentrated on starting my club back with the left arm and keeping the wrists free at the top of the backswing.

This also helped to correct the hook which I had developed.

I tasted my first real competition in August, 1930. I asked off from work and entered an invitation tournament in Forth Worth. Most of the best golfers in the southwest were entered. I won it, beating Hap Massingill, veteran Texan ex-champion, by shooting a 66 in the morning and coasting home in the afternoon.

I remember this tournament very well because of an incident that occurred in the second round match with Henry Robinson of Oklahoma.

I was leading one up on the eighth hole when, in sizing up a putt, I walked over to the other side of the hole and laid my club down.

Robinson claimed the hole, pointing to a rule then existing in the southwest which forbade a golfer to touch his club on the opposite side of the green from where his ball lay.

PLAY THE SHOT

It was intended for sand green play so that a golfer couldn't trace the course of his ball on sloping surfaces. We were playing on a grass green and it made me furious to think that he would resort to such a technicality.

I lost the next several holes.

Then I pulled myself together.

"Here I am getting mad at him and hurting nobody but myself," I said to myself.

So I cooled off and immediately got hot on the course. On the last four holes I fired in a duce, a three, another three, and a duce. I could not have done that had I remained peeved.

It's a lesson I learned and one all golfers should learn. Play the shot you're playing, not the last one. Don't moan and groan and curse. If you lose a stroke by tough luck don't throw another one away in anger.

It took me a long time to steady myself and control a bad disposition, but I believe that I've finally got it in hand.

I know that two years ago I could not have pulled myself together in the last nine the way I was able to do in the Masters' Tournament.

FLOYD HANSON

Hanson Asks Chief Shute For Escort

Even the toughest of them soften when the going gets torridly hot.

Floyd Hanson, who qualifies splendidly for the local badman title of the mat, this morning was very meek when he entered Chief of Police A. G. Shute's office to ask for police protection at the Memorial hall tonight, when he enters the ring to meet Charlie Keene in the headline event of Mike Cutcher's card.

After his ribald treatment of Keene last week and following the mean trick he used to win the deciding fall, Hanson was given a good sample of mob-fury near the breaking point.

Tonight Hanson takes no chances and has asked and will undoubtedly be granted a police escort in his trips to and from the ring.

Supporting the main event will be a semi-windup featuring the melo-dramatic Abdul Khan and Oscar Mossfeldt of Calgary.

The curtain opener promises unusual preliminary action with Jack Jackson, the chesty one, and Emil Van Velzin, the powerful one, trading grunts and groans. There exists a keen rivalry between these two locals and they should go into their act with plenty of gusto.

The card gets under way at 9:00 o'clock.

Pee-Wee Baseball Is Calgary Plan For Young Sports

CALGARY, May 7.—Just as soon as the Pee Wee professional hockey players packed their little skates and grips in closets for the summer, sportsmen here began organizing a baseball league along similar lines.

Recognized across Canada as a method to stimulate interest in sport among midget-sized kids, the new organization will take its baseball club-names from the United States National League, Tommy Kolt, league manager said.

Players between nine and 14 years of age will gather at a city stadium Saturday and Coach Kolt hopes to start with 10 teams, July 1.

There's a Dizzy Dean, and a Mel Ott and other prominent leaguer counterparts to draw crowds opening day, sportsmen here say.

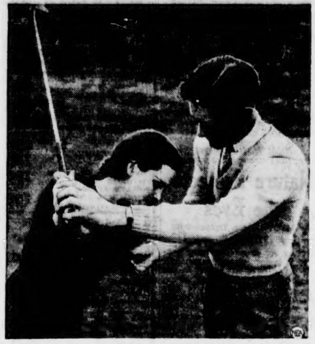
Canadian Wins London Battle

LONDON, May 7.—Ken Robinson, Canadian middleweight, defeated Nat Franks of England on points last night in a preliminary to the Buddy-Baer-Jim Wilde fight here.

Calgary Jockey Seriously Hurt

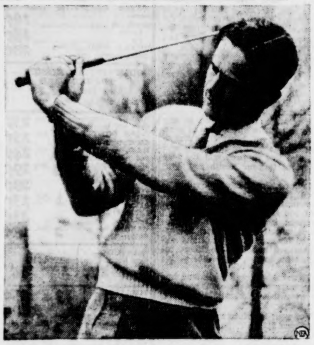
JAMACIA, L.I., May 7.—Possibility Eddie Litzenberger may not ride again this year was seen as the little Calgary jockey rested in Mary Immaculate hospital here yesterday with a double-fractured left leg, result of a racing spill Wednesday. Doctors described the breaks as "very severe."

Left Arm Straight and . . .



"Keep the left arm straight," Byron Nelson, winner of the Masters' Tournament, tells petite Mrs. Nelson. "That guards against collapsing in the downswing. Keep the face of the club open."

. . . Right Arm Close In



Byron Nelson demonstrates three points to be watched at the top of the backswing. The left arm is straight. The right arm is close to the body. Wrists are free so that they can be easily cocked.

Vancouver Swimmers Claim Seven New Canadian Marks

Await Sanction To Make Them Official After Championship Gala

VANCOUVER, May 7.—Vancouver swimmers claimed seven new Canadian swim records—five senior and two junior—and awaited only sanction of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association to make them official.

The records were claimed last night at a city championship gala.

Joan Langdon, 14-year-old protege of Coach Percy Norman's Vancouver Amateur Swimming Club, did the 220 junior girls breaststroke in 3:38 flat held by Eva Erskine of Toronto and the senior record of 3:31 held by Kay Reynolds of Toronto.

SCORES DOUBLE

In the 150 yards backstroke, Jean Stanton of Vancouver scored another double record win with a time of 1:58 3-5. The mark bettered the junior record of 2:05 held by Dot Hobson of Toronto and the senior record of 2:01 2-5 held by Marion Moffatt of Vancouver.

Seventeen-year-old Mary Baggley, another Norman protege, crawled the 220 women's freestyle event in 2:38 2-5, bettering the record of 2:41 2-5 held by Mary McConkey of Edmonton. The mark also bettered the time of 2:39 flat set by Helene Madison of the United States in Montreal in 1931.

Bobby Hooper, six-foot, 18-year-old of the V.A.S.C., broke the 150-yard freestyle record of 1:33 held by Bob Hammerton of Winnipeg with a time of 1:27 4-5 and the Vancouver Amateur Swimming Club's medley relay team did the 300-yard medley event in 3-45 3-5 to break the old Canadian mark of 3:59 held by the Toronto Dolphinets.

FINE TEAM

The medley relay team was composed of Noel Oxenbury, backstroke; Joan Langdon, breaststroke; and Mary Baggley, freestyle.

Noel Oxenbury won the 150-yard individual medley relay event in 2:02 and Bobby Hooper did the same event for men in 1:59.

There are no existing records for the 150-yard individual medley relay but officials said last night's times were exceptionally fast.

The sweet pea is said to be a native of Sicily. It was first mentioned in 1695 by an Italian monk who sent seeds to England and Holland.

Feller's Immediate Future Undecided

CLEVELAND, May 7.—Immediate pitching future of Bob Feller, on the shelf for nearly two weeks with a muscular injury to his "million dollar" right arm, was in doubt today.

Manager Steve O'Neill of Cleveland Indians said he didn't know when the Iowa schoolboy would make his second appearance of the season because the arm ailment had proved more serious than originally expected.

A new regulation of the Bureau of Air Commerce requires all transport planes to have radio direction finders installed by Jan. 1, 1938.

Wichita Thurstons Are Rated Fastest Team in U.S. Ranks

Impressive Invaders Threaten to Wrest Underwood Trophy From Perennial Champions—Edmonton Grads

WHILE many teams heralded as strong contenders were turned back in the past by Coach Percy Page's Edmonton Grads, the latest challenge to come from the U.S. is heralded as one of the most serious ever flung by an American Team.

The Wichita Thurstons, the next basketball squad from the land of stars and stripes to attempt to wrest the Underwood trophy from our Grads, backs its claims with facts and figures—and it must be admitted they're impressive. They meet the Grads in the first game of a best-of-five series here Tuesday, May 11.

Wichita's bid for an international series was weeded out from a large number of applications sent in to the A.A.U. of the United States. In order to prevent push-overs, the A.A.U. requires facts to accept a challenge. This year only three were accepted, among them that of Wichita Thurstons.

ALWAYS NEAR TOP

For the last seven years Wichita has been competing in the American national tournament and time after time has worked its way into the quarter and semi-finals, only to lose out to such teams as Durante, Tulsa, El Dorado, etc.

This year the Thurstons were impressive throughout the tournament eliminations. They eventually reached the semi-finals only to lose out to the Little Rock team, which eventually won the tourney in a crucial overtime battle, in which they were unfortunate to suffer some bad breaks. They lost by a single basket in the second overtime period.

Southern and middle-west basketball critics who have watched these American tournaments for many years rate the Wichita team as the "fastest team in America" and refer to their short-passing game as the best seen in the tournament. This feature of their game should appeal particularly to Edmonton fans as the Grads' game has always been built along the same lines—a quick breaking short-passing style which keeps the game going at top-notch speed.

INDIVIDUAL STARS

Every member of the team is an individual star.

Hazel McConnaughy, winsome Irish Colleen, is reported the main cog of the machine, Playing centre, although only 5 feet 7 inches, she has out-jumped at the tip-off nearly all centres that oppose her.

Myrtle Shiever, a starry forward, has been national free-throw champion for the last three years.

Two of the girls will be making their second trip to Edmonton to play the Grads. Lois Poole Ogden was here last year with the powerful Tulsa Stenos and was a starry member of the team. She is a brilliant shot. The other girl who was here previously is Colene Pederson who came with the Des Moines team.

The coach of the team is "Buddy" Reynolds, a former player of note and a highly-rated coach. Last year he piloted a boys' team to national honors.

Other members of the team are: Alpha Shook, Corene Smith, Ellen Frieson, Eva Brownewell, Ruby Dohr and Vivian Sullerd.

Meanwhile the Grads are daily working out, polishing their plays, sharpening their already sharp shooting eyes and seasoning the rookies—Frances Gordon, Winnie Gallen and Jean Williamson.

For competitive practice the Grads oppose the "boy Grads", who give the girls plenty of opposition and incidentally hang up the odd defeat on the champions.

Buddy Baer Halts Wilde London Bout

LONDON, May 7.—Buddy Baer, huge brother of Max Baer, the former heavyweight champion, stopped Jim Wilde of Great Britain in the fourth round of their match in Harringay stadium last night. Wilde was down three times in the first round and was in no condition to continue when the referee stepped in and halted hostilities. Baer weighed 242 pounds, Wilde 208.

Powell Suffers Food Poisoning

DETROIT, May 7.—Outfielder Jake Powell of New York Yankees suffered an attack of food poisoning yesterday just before the start of the Yankees-Tigers game.

He was taken ill and fainted in the visitors' clubhouse at Navin Field. Given treatment in the clubhouse, he rested during the game and said he would be able to accompany the team when it left for Cleveland.

Challenge Affair Tops Busy Week-end Over City Courses

Cuthbert-Vickers Team Opposes Martell Brothers, at Highlands; McMullen Kirkland Series Scheduled

Another big week-end of golf awaits the city's shotmakers with three major competitions billed for Saturday and Sunday.

The three-star feature will be the battle at the Highlands club on Sunday afternoon for the coveted Eaton challenge trophy, now held by the two-star combination of Henry and Burns Martell. Sunday's match will see Jack Cuthbert and Stew Vickers, top-notch Calgarians, attempt to lift the silver bowl from behind the barricades of the Martells' deadly woods and irons.

The match will be over the 18-hole route with the starting set at approximately 2:00 p.m. The Martells are favorites to retain the trophy, especially since they will be defending on their home course a layout that is a real test of golfing ability. It is more than likely that the Calgarians will have plenty of trouble.

NEXT IN LINE

The next big event on the week-end program is the second series of inter-club games for the McMullen trophy. As usual, four city clubs will be in action with two teams of 10 players each. Play will start early Sunday morning.

Mayfair's "A" squad will play the Country Club and be composed of T. C. Morrison and J. B. Proctor, R. L. Proctor and A. W. Matthews, L. R. Hoar and W. L. Hoar; R. A. Bradburn and L. F. O'Neill; W. Broadfoot and L. Greer. The "B" team will be at home against invading Country Clubbers and be made up of L. A. Grove and Ken Montgomery; K. P. Duggan and H. McLeod; P. Fuog and J. G. Hoar; L. V. Trimble and E. N. Kennedy; D. McLeod and L. Morris.

Saturday afternoon will see the Mayfair shotmakers swing into their annual President vs. Vice-president competition, best ball match play over 18 holes. The losing side will pay for a dinner for the winners—right after the match and no fooling.

Kirkland Cup Draw

The first round of the Kirkland cup competition will be played at the Highlands Golf Club on Sunday, May 9. The event will be match play on a handicap basis. Any player who is unable to participate on Sunday may make satisfactory arrangements with his opponent to play the match not later than Wednesday, May 12. A second draw will be made after the first round. There will be a consolation draw for all players eliminated in the first round.

Following is the draw with starting times:

SMART BOYS PLACE BETS ON AMBERS

Put Canzoneri On Short End of Betting for Title Go Tonight

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, May 7.—Tony Canzoneri, in his day one of the greatest little scrappers ever to pull on a pair of leather mittens, goes after his old lightweight crown for the third time in a 15-round match with Champion Lou Ambers in Madison Square Garden tonight.

ODDS MAY SOAR

It will be one of the few times in his long ring career Tony has been the underdog in the betting against a man in his own division. The smart boys along the Great White Way were laying 12 to 5 on Ambers last night with the possibility the odds may soar to 3 to 1 by post time.

Their belief Tony has passed his peak and stands scant chance against the youngster, faster boy, saw from up-state Herkimer, is based on the former champ's poor showing in his tuneup bouts. Tony won all three, but he was extended to the limit in one and narrowly escaped being knocked out in another.

TONY CAN HIT

"Tony can hit just as well as he ever did," said Manager Sammy Goldman, "and a fighter is never through so long as he can sock. One good smack on the chin will make everything all right. We think Tony will stop Lou in six rounds."

Ambers, a much improved battler in his recent scraps, doesn't expect to stop Tony, but he is confident his youth and speed will bring him an easy decision over the long 15-round championship route.

Canzoneri, who also has held the featherweight title, won the lightweight crown from Al Singer in 1930. Barney Ross of Chicago became champ in 1933 but when he gave up the title in 1935, Tony regained it by beating Ambers. Ambers beat Tony last year and has worn the crown since.

JOHN HENDRY, mining investment head.
BOB ANDREWS, Hendry's junior partner and Joan's fiance.
SYBIL HENDRY, socialite, John Hendry's niece and Joan's rival in love.
PHILIP HENDRY, Sybil's brother.
DOROTHY STARKE, Joan's girlhood friend.
CHARLES NORTON, California mining promoter.

Yesterday: Philip stumbles onto the complete story of the Barrett hanging 10 years ago in San Francisco and jubilantly calls Sybil.

CHAPTER XXIV

SYBIL lay in the rose and silver boudoir, fathoms deep in a dream of contentment. A shaft of starlight from the open window fell across her pillow, and, now that the cold, dark eyes were closed in slumber, it reflected a picture of alluring beauty. Her lips were curved in a happy smile, and occasionally her breathing became a soft sigh, gentle as the first breath of spring.

Perhaps she dreamed of Bob, undisturbed by golden-haired stenographers with questionable pasts. Of a stately and magnificent wedding, unmarred by the empty yearning of five long years. Of a country estate, elaborate and palatial, unrivalled by any other dwelling in the entire country . . .

The telephone on her bedside table jangled, and she stirred restlessly. Within the second, she was asleep again. It rang again, and this time its call was more insistent. Sybil opened her eyes sleepily. A third time it rang, and she sat up quickly. She looked at the tiny clock alongside of her. Two o'clock.

Who could be calling at two o'clock in the morning?

She picked up the phone, answered it impatiently.

"Long distance calling," she heard the voice of the operator. "San Francisco calling. One moment, please."

San Francisco! That would be Philip.

But what in the world would he be calling her for at such an unearthly hour? Two o'clock. In San Francisco, however, she realized that it was [illegible] earlier. Three hours earlier. Even so, what could Philip have discovered so shortly after his arrival?

She turned up the lamp and sat [illegible] with an expectant excitement.

"One moment, please." The operator's voice droned on. "I'm trying to connect you. Hello, San Francisco. Hello. Here's your party. . . ."

Sybil listened breathlessly.

"Hello, New York! Hello!" That was P[illegible]

[illegible] quickly.

"Hello, Sybil? Did I wake you [illegible] I'm sorry, but [illegible] Sybil. Are you listening?"

"Yes, yes, Philip. Go on."

Go back to sleep [illegible]

[illegible]

Joan Barrett [illegible] father had been hanged at San Quentin. Who could tell what outrageous ideas [illegible] sweet blue eyes of [illegible] daughter?

And that was the girl Bob Andrews wanted to marry!

No wonder she had told him that she'd rather die than have him find it out. Imagine living one's life with a murderer's [illegible] at any moment [illegible] same crime herself. It was in her blood to kill . . . .

Bob would [illegible] when he found it out. It was like Sybil not to consider how [illegible] he might be hurt, her mind was too full of the supreme satisfaction she would know when he learned the truth.

She must be careful, however. Too well she realized that. It was not going to be an easy story to tell. Bob was devoted to the girl, and his loyalty would not be swept aside in one sudden blow. She must be very, very careful.

It might be better, she reflected, if she were not the one to tell him. Much better. Someone else must do that. Someone else must strike the blow, and she would be on hand with her sympathy and understanding and condolences . . .

But who should be the one to tell him?

Philip? She could not wait for Philip. This was Thursday, Friday morning, rather. On Saturday, they planned to be married. No, it could not be Philip.

Uncle John, then!

She considered this carefully. Bob honored and trusted him; he was guided to a very large degree by Uncle John's opinions.

Moreover, Uncle John could tell him gently and kindly [illegible] to arouse too [illegible]. That would never do. Bob must not feel that, because one woman had betrayed him, they were all fashioned from the same mould. Uncle John could make him realize that this had been a wild infatuation—very, very unfortunate, but a little indiscreet, nevertheless.

Yes, Uncle John would be the one to tell him.

She would speak to him the first thing in the morning, before he left for the office.

Suddenly she remembered what Bob had told her that evening about her uncle. Tonight he was alone in that little house with 40 thousand dollars! And Abranam might not be home until morning . . .

She got out of bed quickly. She would go over to see Uncle John immediately. She would tell him that she had been unable to sleep worrying about him alone in the house with all that money. And then, very carefully, pretending the utmost reluctance, she would tell him of Joan Barrett . . .

Hastily she dressed. She would run over the few blocks to Uncle John's. It was too late to get out the car. Besides, she hated the struggle of opening garage doors and starting up a cold motor. And if she called Jennings at this hour he would take an eternity to dress [illegible]

Within ten minutes she was out of the house. [illegible] her steps in the direction of her uncle's house, with as wild a song in her heart as Joan had known [illegible] along these streets a few hours previously. The same bright stars looked down [illegible]

She saw the same light burning [illegible]

[illegible]

Strange, [illegible] she heard no voices. Perhaps Mr. Norton had [illegible]

[illegible]

Uncle John sat there, gazing at her from his lifeless eyes, even as he had gazed at Joan two hours earlier. But now his figure was [illegible] being left alone in this house of death.

[illegible] But she made no [illegible] word [illegible]

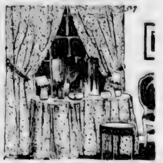
And as she reached the door her left foot caught in something upon the floor and she looked down in terror. It was a black kid glove, a woman's black kid glove.

Quickly she bent to pick it up. And as she looked at it, her eyes widened with sudden comprehension and understanding. She remembered picking up that same glove once before that evening—a plain black kid glove, trimmed with petit-point embroidery. In her own house she had picked it up and handed it to Joan Barrett!

(To Be Continued)

What To Do



Can you suggest some way in which I can add a note of color and give a modern touch to my bedroom? It seems so commonplace with just the regular suite of bedroom furniture. I can't afford to spend very much money, so please keep this in mind when suggesting any changes. MRS. M. B. H.

Answer—There's nothing like a colorful flounced dressing table to give your bedroom a smart modern touch. Perhaps your room is asking for new draperies. All the better, then put a skirt on the dressing table to exactly match the chintz or cretonne of the window draperies. If you can put the dressing table below a window or between two windows treated alike, the tie-up between the draperies will be even more effective. If you don't happen to have a dressing table, [illegible] an old table or chest or bench which can be painted a becoming color and a mirror which can be pressed into new service by redecorating its old frame. Measure around the top of the table and allow about one and three-quarter times this amount of fullness. The skirt should just escape touching the floor and hang in soft ripply fullness. First cover the top by tacking the material tightly along the edge, then tack the skirt to the edge. A piece of glass cut to size will keep the top fresh and clean.

Markets Today's

At Toronto

TORONTO, May 7—Fair buying in Lake Shore took the price to 53½ today on the Toronto Exchange where it showed a gain of 1½ for the day.

Weakness was displayed by Pend Oreille on the news that the mill would be closed for three months for repairs. It dropped to 2.60 but came back to 2.85, for a net loss of 25 cents.

Brazilian changed hands in substantial volume at a loss of a minor fraction. Consumers Gas, United Fuel pfd., and Winnipeg Electric A were down slightly. Power Corporation stood out with a gain of nearly two points and Montreal Power firmed ⅜ to 30½.

Canada Packers, Dominion Stores, Fanny Farmer and Western Canada Flour were strong.

At Montreal

MONTREAL, May 7.—Restricted to narrow changes the market held fairly steady in light trading today. More gains appeared than losses.

Shawinigan led utilities with a gain of ⅜ at 28¼. Brazilian eased ⅛ to 23⅛.

Massey-Harris improved ⅜ to 13 and Cockshutt Plow ¼ to 18¾. National Steel Car lost ¾ at 45½, and C.P.R. added ⅛ at 13¾. Canadian Car preferred was up ½ at 28½.

St. Lawrence Corporation and Howard Smith dipped ¼ each. Noranda gained ¾ at 64¼ and Nickel declined ½ to 61½.

At New York

NEW YORK, May 7.—Leading stocks encountered recovery difficulties today and closing price trends were indefinite.

Performing on the upside most of the time were Allied Chemical, ethlehem Steel, National Steel, Sears Roebuck, Westinghouse, International Harvester, Oliver Farm, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway and Libby-Owens.

Virtually at a standstill or lower were U.S. Steel, Republic, General Motors, Chrysler, Yellow Truck, Goodyear, U.S. Rubber, Standard Oil of N.J., Seaboard Oil, General Electric, Anaconda, Kennecott and American Telephone.

WHEAT PRICES TURNED LOWER

WINNIPEG, May 7.—Wheat prices turned lower on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today in sympathy with weakness at Chicago. Light offerings prompted by prospective moisture in the southwest sent futures drifting lower in an irregular session that closed 2-1¼ cents down. May at $1.30¾, July $1.29⅛ and October $1.18¼-⅛.
